RICH WIDOW OF SUICIDE DISAPPEARS

Mrs. F. C. Chambers Missing From L. A. Hotel When Sought Following Death of Husband, Who Shot Self

Millionaire Takes Own Life After Days of Brooding Over Self-Destruction of His Adopted Daughter

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 25.—Efforts to locate Mrs. Frank Chambers, wife of Frank Chambers, multi-millionaire of San Mateo, who committed suicide last night in the millionaire colony near San Francisco, proved unavailing today.

Mrs. Chambers, who registered at the Ritz hotel here on October 19, left the hotel about 6 o'clock last night, the management of the hostelry stated today.

At 9:55 last night telephone and telegraph messages began to arrive for Mrs. Chambers. Repeated efforts have been made since then to get in communication with the young widow.

Mrs. Chambers was very demure, very sad and very troubled since she came to the Ritz, friends declared today. She was in daily communication with San Mateo where her husband resided, they said, and would wait hours for a telephone call.

CHAMBERS SENDS BULLET THROUGH HEAD.

As one more victim of the tragic fate that has hung over his family for the past 17 years, Frank R. Chambers, son of a New York multi-millionaire, today lies dead, a suicide, in a luxurious apartment in San Mateo. It is the same apartment that, until three weeks ago, was occupied by the beautiful 17-year-old girl popularly supposed to be his daughter, but who killed herself because of her love for him.

Last night Chambers sent a bullet through his own brain because he could not stop brooding over her death.

Ten days ago Chambers and his second wife, separated, he [illegible] Chambers could not forget that it was because Marilouise was insanely jealous of his wife that she had killed herself.

Chambers' suicide last night, which he accomplished in spite of the watchfulnes of a detectives who had been contantly at his side during the past week, adds one more catastrophe to the drama that bega with Marilouise's birth i Portland 1[illegible] years ago.

Until that time, Chambers recently explained to those who were investigating the suicidal death of his supposed daughter, he and his wife had been happy. But, he declared, he was not the father of Marilouise, and her appearance shattered his happiness in his home.

Nevertheless, he said, he kept knowledge of her parentage secret from her, and she grew up believing him to be her father. When he thought her old enough to know the truth, which was a couple of years ago, he told her, and then divorced his wife.

FILIAL AFFECTION IS TRANSFORMED TO LOVE

When Marilouise discovered that he was not her real father, he said, her filial affection became transformed into a new kind of love. She became bitterly jealous of his second wife. For a while she traveled in Europe, and attended school in the East. But a few months ago she wrote him that she could not stand it to be separated from him any longer, and that she wanted to come home. He sent for her, and she arrived at San Mateo about two months ago. She would not live in the same house with his second wife, however, and he established her in a luxurious apartment at 418 Grand avenue.

On the night of October 7, Marilouise, after writing a note in which she revealed her hopeless love for Chambers, shot and killed herself. It was then that Chambers revealed to the world, for the first time, that the young girl was not his real daughter.

Ten days ago Chambers, who had been grief-stricken ever since the girl's death, sent his wife to Los Angeles, announcing that he intended to start divorce action.

"I want to forget everything," he declared at the time. "I don't want ever to see my wife again. It was jealousy of her that made Marilouise kill herself. She wasn't to blame, but it was because of her that my little girl died. I want to forget."

Husband, 67, Says Wife, 27, Beat Him And Took Child; He Asks Alimony

Man, Asking Divorce, Claims He "Mothered" Boy When Spouse Refused.

An interchange of roles between husband and wife, with the husband "mothering" their child, demanding alimony, and having the wife arrested for battery, and the wife beating the husband and forcibly taking the child away from him, is the picture drawn by the various allegations made in police and divorce court by Jacob Bonsack, 67, and Mrs. Laura Bopsack, 27.

Mrs. Bonsack, haled into police court today by her husband, pleaded not guilty to the battery charge. Her trial was set for November 7. Bonsack declared that he was set upon and beaten last Monday by his wife, her sister, Mrs. Genie Howard and Mrs. Mable D. Shelter. He says that they tore his 7-year-old son from his grasp with such force and violence as to break apart his ribs, which had been previously broken and had partly healed. The two latter women previously pleaded not guilty to battery charges.

On file in the Superior court today is Bonsack's answer to a divorce suit started recently in which his wife charged him with cruelty and demanded custody of the child, Jacob Jr. In his answer Bonsack denies the charges, and declares that in reality he has been the "mother" of the boy, caring for him when his wife refused to do so.

He also declared that his wife, during their married life, took advantage of his declaration that he had never struck a woman and never would, and that she frequently attacked him, beating him with stove wood, and duster handles, and other domestic weapons.

In his answer and cross-complaint Bonsack demanded that his wife be compelled to pay him $25 a month alimony. He explained that his entire income was only $25 a month, and that she was capable of earning $90 a month as a stenographer.

Bonsack also demands the return of the child, whom his wife took away from him, he says, in her alleged assault upon him.

The divorce suit is at present pending before Superior Judge Joseph S. Koford. Following a hearing held yesterday afternoon, Judge Koford continued the case until Monday morning, when the question of the custody of the child is to be determined.

The couple were married February 2, 1916. According to Bonsack, he first met his wife when she came to his office in Fort Worth, Texas, to apply for a position as stenographer. He hired her, and later married her.

COLUMBUS, O., Oct. 25.—New records in a new era of air navigation will have been made by the navy dirigible Shenandoah, the only American built rigid airship, when it completes its spectacular 9000-miles cruise and is led into its hangar at Lakehurst, N. J., late today.

Skirting three sides of the United States and returning by almost the same route the Sheandoah has had one of the severest tests ever given to an airship. The cruise is the longest both in time and distance ever made by an airship of any type.

No other rigid airship has ever navigated over mountain peaks and through passes as the Shenandoah did in its two crossings of the Rockies.

It is the first airship to successfully complete a westbound voyage across the United States and the first rigid ship ever west of the Mississippi river.

Although the great ship battled head winds on four out of six legs of the cruise, she averaged between 38 and 40 miles an hour, including the hours sailing at low speed awaiting an opportunity to moor.

The six jumps in the cruise of the Shenandoah were each much shorter than the straight away 5000-mile flight of the ZR-3. The German-built Zeppelin is a faster ship than its American sky companion, but it did not meet the difficulties overcome by the Shenandoah in a single crossing of the Rockies. The two voyages in July, 1919, of the R-34 from East Fortune, Scotland, to Mineola, New York and back to Pulham, England, were respectively 3150 and 3500 miles and took eleven days.

RUSS CLAIM BRITISH PLOT NOTE FORGED

London Soviet Envoy Raps Authenticity of Document Urging English Revolt; Protests Its Publication;

Revelations Are Viewed as Political Tactics With Labor Party Losing by Move of the Conservatives

BY LLOYD ALLEN.
United Press Staff Correspondent.

LONDON, Oct. 25.—Russia countered the British protest against the "Zinoviev letter" by entering an emphatic protest of her own today.

Declaring the letter "an obvious forgery," Christian Rakovsky, soviet envoy, sent a note to the foreign office, protesting against its publication before he (Rakovsky) had been informed.

It develops that the letter—publication of which, coupled with a sharp note to Moscow, caused a tremendous sensation throughout the British Isles, has been a carefully guarded secret in innermost political circles since early October 5.

The letter, purporting to be from Zinoviev, president of the communist internationale to British communists, urged revolution and sabotage in England. Prime Minister Macdonald yesterday sent an emphatic note protesting against the letter and asking the Russian government if it could not control its extremists and live up to its agreements—agreements which are under fire in this country as one of the chief election issues.

London secret service men are said to have plucked the Zinoviev letter from the mails from Riga, photographed it and then caused it to be delivered to the Central committee of the British communist party.

MacDonald and Arthur Henderson were informed and a cabinet meeting discussed the matter October 9.

The conservatives learned of the matter, however, [illegible] recalled that a conservative spokesman told a group of newspapermen on Tuesday:

"Watch Zinoviev, his name will be a storm center on the general election."

Meanwhile MacDonald had drafted his Russian note at Sherfield Tuesday. It became a race between conservatives and laborites to see which got credit for the revelation.

The labor government made its note and the Zinoviev letter public just in time to prevent the conservative press from bursting forth with the announcement, but the press today is inclined to give the conservatives most of the credit and figure the exposure as a blow to labor.

Bears Meet Cougars Before Large Crowd

Playing in the U. C. stadium before the largest crowd that has attended a Pacific Coast football game this season, the University of California Bears met the Cougars from Washington State College in their first conference game of the 1924 season.

California's football supremacy, already threatened in four hard pre-season games, faced its severest test today. With a defense that has proved very weak and an offense that has not as yet shown anything, California was not favored to win by a very large margin.

Washington State, with everything to win and nothing to lose, opened up full blast from the kick-off in an attempt to be the first to defeat the Golden Bear after four years as undisputed ruler of the coast.

Four Lost When Rum Ship Sunk 150 Miles From S. F. in Mutiny

Skipper of Abandoned Boat Tells U. S. Probers of Revolt on High Seas.

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 25.—Four members of the rum runner Guilea, whose captain and twelve men were picked up in two lifeboats off Point Esteros, 150 miles off this port, may have perished, it was revealed today upon the arrival of the ship here. The thirteen rescued men were turned over to immigration authorities.

The four were reported missing. The captain told immigration authorities a tale of mutiny on the high seas and said the officers had held the crew in subjection at the point of guns for a week.

The ship was finally scuttled by a negro fireman, according to the story told the immigration authorities.

They are being held for an investigation of the Guilea's rum running activities.

The Giulia was 15 miles from shore when she was sunk. The life boats in which the men were found contained 20 small firearms, and Captain Louis Prendle of the Brookings forced the Giula survivers to throw the arms overboard before he would take them on board.

STATE REGISTERS 1,822,357 VOTES

California Republicans Outnumber Democrats 3 to 1; 195,192 "Neutrals."

SACRAMENTO, Oct. 25.—Official registration figures for the final election November 4 made public today by Secretary of State Frank C. Jordan, show the Republicans outnumbered the Democrats three to one in the state, but also reveal a heavy registration of persons declining to state their party affiliations. San Francisco's total registration was 221,260 and Alameda county, 199,832.

CITY WARS WITH U. S. OVER ISLAND

Mayor Rejects Rent of Agriculture Department. Saying Lease Illegal.

A government voucher for two years' rental of Government Island was returned by the mayor this morning to the chief engineer of the department of public roads of the department of agriculture, on the ground that the city of Oakland never leased this land to the department of agriculture, and it is being held illegally by this section of the federal government.

The return of the rental-voucher is admitted to be the first move in a battle between the city of Oakland and the federal government.

During the war, the city of Oakland leased all its title to Government Island for a shipyard. This lease, it is contended, was made to the "United States Shipping Board" and none other. The shipping board, however, without consulting the city of Oakland, turned the land over to the department of agriculture for a storage place. The city council notified the department of agriculture that the lease is no longer effective.

According to City Attorney Leon E. Gray, the original lease was very specific, to the United States Shipping Board, without authority or consent to any transfer to any other department. The city of Oakland promises to fight the case to a finish.

The matter is admitted to have unusual importance now because of the desire to use Government Island for a permanent flying field. At present the island is littered with sheds and shacks belonging to the department of agriculture.

INCOME TAX PUBLICITY TO FACE TESTS

Internal Revenue Collectors Ordered to Present Within 30 Days All Alleged Violations Regarding Returns

One Official Believes Mix-up Will Be Settled in Court by Friendly Suit; Senators Would Change Provisions

Publication Is Law Violation, Norris Asserts

AINSWORTH, Neb., Oct. 25.—Senator George W. Norris of Nebraska, when informed of the controversy over the publication by Eastern newspapers of income tax returns, said that his publicity amendment provided for the income tax lists to be treated as any other public document, and consequently open to public inspection or publication.

"My amendment passed the Senate," Norris said, "but was lost in the House. As matters now stand it is my understanding that such publication is a violation of the law because the returns now are meant to be secret."

WASHINGTON, Oct. 25. — Collectors of internal revenue within 30 days will present to United States district attorneys evidence of wilful violations of the revenue laws affecting income tax publicity, it was said at the internal revenue bureau today.

This will be done under Section 1018 of the new tax law, re-enacted sections 3164 and 3167 of the revised statutes. Section 3164 reads as follows:

"It shall be the duty of every collector of internal revenue having knowledge of wilful violation of any law of the United States relating to the revenue, within thirty days after coming into possession of such knowledge, to file with the district attorney of the district in which any fine, penalty or forfeiture may be incurred, a statement of all the facts and circumstances of the case within his knowledge together with the names of the witnesses."

The degree of difference of opinion over the tax publicity in the internal revenue bureau was revealed in the statements of Commissioner of Internal Revenue Blair and Deputy Commissioner Nash today.

PUBLICATION ILLEGAL, IS BLAIR'S OPINION.

Blair said: "I don't think it was the purpose of congress to permit publication of income returns. I think it is illegal to publish them. There is no reason why we should give counsel to the newspapers. The law is stated in the revenue act. It is up to them to consult their own attorneys to guide their action."

Nash said: "I believe the tax publicity mixup will be settled without any fuss in a friendly suit before some learned judge. It is after all a question for the courts to decide. The revenue bureau is neutral in its attitude, and is concerned only with obedience of the law.

"Meanwhile collectors have been instructed to permit inspection of books and act in a reasonable and fair way. The collectors in obedience to the law will be prepared to give the United States attorneys any evidence of violations which they believe may have been incurred under the provisions of the law."

WATERFRONT NOW FOREMOST ISSUE, DECLARES CARTER

Republican Candidate Criticises Motives, Platform of Opponent.

"It does not seem to me that hatred, malice, spleen and pent up spite constitute an adequate platform for a candidate for congress. It does not seem to me that a candidate is playing fair with the taxpayers when he would undertake to wilfully mislead them for the purpose of making votes. It does not seem to me to be good business to send a man to congress from this district, where the development of our waterfront is our greatest problem, who does not even so much as know how much waterfront we have.

This was the declaration of Commissioner Albert E. Carter, Republican candidate for congress, speaking at a meeting of the employees of the Moore Shipyards last night.

In the modest little leaflet issued by my opponent he announces that he personally won back the title to 50 miles of Oakland waterfront. Oakland never had 30 miles of waterfront. It has but 16.1 miles. The records of the city fail to show that he started even one waterfront suit and in making this statement I say to you that my opponent is either pathetically ignorant of our waterfront—our greatest asset—or else he is resorting to misrepresentation to catch votes. I challenge him to reply to this statement.

"I wonder how many of you are familiar with my opponent's last effort toward waterfront development. It was this effor that turned the other members of the council against him. With characteristic assurance he attempted to force the council to place before the voters a project to buy 300 acres of marsh land near San Leandro at a price of $1000 an acre. I blocked this because I did not believe the land worth half of this figure. And events have proven that I was right. At a foreclosure sale this land my opponent wanted to purchase for $1000 an acre brought just $275.

"I merely bring these things to your attention because I believe that you want to select your Congressman with but one idea in his mind, and that is his qualifications for rendering service to his district."

News of Candidates

Joseph Scott, Los Angeles attorney, former president of the Chamber of Commerce of that city and vice of the Los Angeles Board of Education, is convinced that Southern California is making a big definite swing to the standard of Coolidge and Dawes. Scott is now engaged in a speaking tour of central and northern California, speaking here last night at two meetings—one in National hall at Mission and Sixteenth streets, San Francisco, and later at Maple hall, 1514 Polk street.

Scott is a member of the executive committee of the Republican state central committee and has long been identified with Republican activities. He blazed the trail from the Atlantic to the Pacific during the administration of the late President Harding.

"The thing that has turned the tide in Southern California has been the concern of the people there for the citrus industry and other products of that part of the state," said Scott. "They realize now that, if the Socialist program of La Follette is adopted, the people of Southern California will face bankruptcy."

Mrs. Harry Kleugel of this city, well-known throughout the state as a public speaker, made one of the principal addresses at the luncheon and rally of Republican women held yesterday at the Alexandria hotel, under the auspices of the Los Angeles Republican Study club.

A number of women prominent in club and social work in Los Angeles were on the program. The speakers included Mrs. C. P. Clark, National Republican committeewoman of California; Mrs. Florence Porter, vice-chairman of the Coolidge-Dawes clubs of Southern California; Mrs. Rose Bryant, secretary of the Republican state central committee; Mrs. Harriet Works, vice-chairman of the county central committee and Mrs. Laura Kelly, chairman of the current politics committee of the Republican Study club.

Believing that the prosperity of both California and the country as a whole is depending upon the continuation of Republican principles as represented in the administration of Calvin Coolidge leaders in the local Norwegian and Scandinavian community have organized a Coolidge committee headed by C. L. Wold.

Under the leadership of this organization an intensive campaign has been launched to impress upon the local Scandinavian people the importance of the coming election. On the executive committee of the organization with Wold are T. B. Paulsen, Dr. L. J. Jacobsen, P. L. Halse, P. R. Paulsson, J. Heendahl Hansen, A. Warenskjold, B. A. Guthe, C. Henry Smith, Louis Thynes, Casper Hexberg, A. A. Nilson, Marcus Marcussen and Hokan Jensen.

A neighborhood Coolidge and Dawes rally, with Rex Goodcell and H. E. Neumiller as the speakers, has been arranged for Monday evening at the Technical High school auditorium, according to announcements made yesterday by the Coolidge headquarters. Both speakers are numbered among the finest on the speaking staff of the California Republican central committee.

The Elmhurst Republican club has opened headquarters at 9533 East Fourteenth street and will carry forward an intensive campaign in that district. The club has endorsed Coolidge and Dawes; Albert E. Carter for congress, and E. H. Christian for state senator. Its officers consist of Phil H. Weber, president; Walter Newbert, vice-president; R. W. Tutt, secretary and Charles Bannion, treasurer.

The canvass of the district will be conducted by J. E. Wood, Harry Grimes, George C. Young, John Campbell, C. A. Hoffmaster, Joseph Raymond, George Dugan, H. J. Klug, Tony Garcia, Charles Trembly, Joseph St. Mary, U. S. Sliter, Walter Newbert, Dr. Phil H. Weber, J. C. Toffelmier, Dr. H. J. Schuman, George Frates, John J. Peters, R. W. Tutt and J. E. Wood.

Speaking at a neighborhood gathering yesterday evening at the home of Mrs. C. R. McKee, 1032 Mariposa street, Berkeley, Ernest S. Leslie, who received a large vote at the recent primaries in a race for nomination as supervisor from the Fourth district, declared his intention of taking the stump on behalf of Stuart B. Bowes. "While I was eliminated in the recent primaries I feel that Bowes is carrying on the fight I was making then," said Leslie. "So I am urging all the good friends who voted for me to turn their support to him."

California Relief Map to Be Unveiled

"California in Miniature," the panoramic relief map of the state, now nearing completion in the nave of the Ferry building, San Francisco, under the auspices of the executive committee of the California Development Association, will be unveiled on November 19. The unveiling will be featured with a banquet and special ceremonies.

COMMON SENSE URGED IN VOTING FOR PRESIDENT

"Do not let class prejudice or religious differences guide you when you exercise your right as an American citizen on November 4. Use your common sense, and then vote," stated Albert W. Jefferies, member of the Coolidge-Dawes transcontinental automobile caravan in an address delivered at an open air meeting yesterday afternoon in front of Chabot hall, Eleventh and Jefferson streets.

Jefferies, who is a former Congressman from Nebraska, is the man who nominated Charles G. Dawes at the Republican convention in Cleveland last June.

"To fololw the advice of Robert M. La Follette and place the final legislative power in the hands of Congress would be to destroy our government of checks and balances, and would constitute a return to the conditions of the Dark Ages.

"Under the constitution we are guaranteed certain rights. Iace absolute power in Congress and what would our rights be worth?" Jefferies stated.

STANDS FOR PROTECTION.

"Calvin Coolidge stands for the protection of the Constitution. He stands for principles that have weathered the test of time. Why should we change?"

The Lincoln automobile caravan, of which Jefferies is a member, left Plymouth, Vt., September 9. Since that time the members have traveled 6000 miles, and have spoken in 300 different cities to more than one and half million people.

Met at the foot of Seventh street by twenty-five banered machines bearing representatives of local Republican headquarters, the caravan paraded through the principal dowtown streets before going to Chabot hall.

PURPOSE OF CARAVAN.

C. S. Nessbaum of the San Francisco headquarters of the Coolidge campaign told of the history and purpose of the caravan and introduced Jefferies.

"A man who is a candidate for no office, who seeks no personal return has come all the way to California to tell us about Calvin Coolidge, and what he stands for," Nessbaum stated in presenting Jefferies.

After the meeting members of the caravan started for Sacramento where they were scheduled to appear in four meetings last night.

RICHARDSON IN STATEMENT BACKS COOLIDGE CAUSE

Governor Says Election Is Contest for Upholding Constitution.

BY ASSOCIATED PRESS
LEASED WIRE TO TRIBUNE

SACRAMENTO, Oct. 25.—Governor Richardson in a statement urges the election of President Coolidge as of vital importance to California. The governor said:

"The coming election is not a contest between the men who seek the presidency. It is not a contest between political parties for power and patronage. The contest a week from Tuesday is a contest in which the vital principles of our nation are at stake. It is a contest between those who stand for the constitution and those who would tear up the very foundations of our liberty.

"'This is a government,' as Lincoln said, 'of the people, by the people and for the people.' It is a government of checks and balances. It is a government with a constitution designed to protect the minority and insure justice to all. The wisest part of our government is that giving the supreme court of the United States power to determine the constitutionality of legislative acts.

"There are those who would permit Congress to overrule the Supreme court. Would you prefer to submit an intricate question of constitutionality to the average political congressman or to a man of legal learning, integrity and character, who, by long years of service, has secured a place on the Supreme court?

"In short, would you prefer to submit grave legal problems to the orderly, quiet and sane methods of the Supreme court, or to the vociferous, stormy and partisan methods of Congress? Calvin Coolidge stands for the constitution, for the Supreme court and the principles of our government."

NEWARK, N. J., Oct. 25.—The La Follette Independent candidacy was accused of misappropriating the name, "progressive," by Charles G. Dawes, Republican candidate for vice-president, in an address here.

"Progressive! Progressive!" he declared, sarcastically. "What kind of progress will we have and in what directions will this party progress if put into power?"

Then in answer to his own question he declared that "the confidence of the American people in their government will be shaken if even there is permitted to be an indication that this attack on our constitution will become successful at some future time."

DECEPTION SEEN BY LA FOLLETTE

SYRACUSE, N. Y., Oct. 25.—Invading the east again for a week's campaigning, Senator Robert M. La Follette, Independent presidential candidate, in a speech here let loose another attack on the Republican party, charging that those seeking to bring about the election of President Coolidge were resorting to "deception and coercion" in an effort to win.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 25.—A statement issued by La Follette-Wheeler headquarters here asserts that Mrs. Mabel Walker Willebrandt, assistant attorney general in charge of prohibition enforcement was "concealing the real truth from the country" as to enforcement conditions for "political purposes."

"The greatest hoax being perpetrated in the present campaign," the statement added, "is the assertion that a vote for Calvin Coolidge is a vote for law enforcement."

WHEELER SPECIAL EN ROUTE, CHICAGO, Oct. 25.—Senator Wheeler, Independent vice-presidential candidate, entered Illinois for the second time today, traveling from the west toward Chicago.

After arrival at Chicago the candidate's program called for an address tonight at Rockford, Ill. He will return to Chicago Sunday.

STUDENTS PLAY 'ICEBOUND' WITH MARKED SUCCESS

Prize Drama Given Western Premier by Wheeler Hall Actors.

By WOOD SOANES.

Owen Davis, "Icebound," the homespun story of New England life that won the Pulitzer prize, was presented for the first time in the west at Wheeler hall on the campus of the university last evening, presented, it may be added, by college students with more than passing success.

"Icebound" is a play that requires most of all, excellent acting and there were many who attended last evening's performance with fear and trembling for the characters that Davis drew are ones that require a delicacy of touch and a depth of understanding that comes not lightly to the amateur.

The presentation of all-amateur players at the university is a new order, but those who feared that the performances would lack the zest given them by the semi-professional players of other years had their fears dispelled in short order during the course of the first act of the Davis opus.

What these players may have lacked in finesse, in knowledge of the tricks of the stage they made up for in earnestness, in desire to please, and in understanding of their individual characters. All that was lacking was the presence of a stage director equipped with this knowledge that the novices lacked in order to make the hit the more pronounced, the laughs the more hearty and the drama the more sound.

MUCH TO PRAISE.

As it was there was so little to blame and so much to praise that the former becomes a negligible quantity when measured up against the latter and the auditors left the auditorium singing the praises of the play and the players and well satisfied that they had received more than their money's worth in entertainment.

"Icebound" is the story of the Jordan family, an icebound New England tribe which has read its Bible but overlooked the passage containing the order to love one another. There is no love wasted even on the mother, and certainly no love wasted on Jane, the second cousin, once removed, who is the mother's servant.

But if the children do not love their maternal parent, neither does she for that matter. Her love is centered in the black sheep of the family whom she recalls as a baby but known as a bad man and it is for him that she designs the strange will that disrupts the family more than ever on her death. This is the theme upon which Davis built his play, a dour comedy with many laughs and some melodrama.

To Irma Dusenberry and Don Blanchard fell the task of interpreting the principal roles of Jane and Ben, the servant and the son, and they acquitted themselves creditably, particularly the latter, who had a more thorough grasp of his role and lost what points he did through direction and not perception. Their final scene together was their weakest.

CAST EFFICIENT.

Comedy honors went to Melville Jacobs, a lad with a shock of red hair and a sense of comedy values that carried him through the hokum, with which the author equipped him, with flying colors. He was typically the inquisitive blundering boy and none too smart at best. Next in point of characterization was his mother, played by Mildred Heavey.

It must not be thought from this that the balance of the cast was inefficient. On the contrary, they worked hard and deserve enormous credit and what they lost in points was the fault of their director and not themselves. They were William Young, Bart Yarborough, Eleanor Evans, Lenore Everett, Barbara Allen, Egbert James and Alice Chapin.

Entre acte music was furnished by the Trio Noveau under the direction of Scott Elder.

COOLIDGE MAPS FOREIGN POLICY BEFORE ENVOYS

World Peace But With Own Integrity Declared Hope and Plan of U. S.

BY ASSOCIATED PRESS
LEASED WIRE TO TRIBUNE

WASHINGTON, Oct. 25.—"The hope and aim of America" is to help Europe to help itself, President Coolidge declared last night in an address devoted to international relations at a Golden Rule dinner of the Near East Relief association.

Speaking before an audience which included many members of the diplomatic corps, Coolidge outlined at some length the attitude of the Washington government in foreign affairs, which he declared followed the Golden Rule.

"Europe does not want our benevolence," the president said. "It does want our help, and we are ready to give it. America wants the peace of good will and of the Golden Rule; not the peace of force imposed by those who have power. It wants peace as the normal, the right, the assured estate in a world from which a wiser generation shall have forever outlawed aggressive war."

Recalling that this country had expended millions in charitable relief, Coolidge called attention that it had extended to other governments loans and credits "which they are beginning to repay." There is a "moral obligation" to make such payments, he added.

NO ARMS FOR LOANS.

The president took occasion also to restate that while this government had given its "general approbation" to numerous loans made by its private citizens in aiding the refinancing of European countries, the loans were made "without the assumption of any obligation whatever by our government."

"American investors receive no assurances that their loans or agreements will be supported by American arms," Coolidge explained.

American relief during the famine periods in Russia had prevented, he declared, the spread of bolshevism over a large proportion of Europe. But for this relief, he added, "civilization, which has been set back a generation in Russia, would have had the same setback over a half score of other countries. Peace would have been impossible."

"We disapprove of the Russian government," he declared, "but America has held humanity higher than international laws."

"We might have taken the attitude," he continued, "that we had completed our obligation to Europe the day the armistice was signed. But the object of America in the war was greater than military victory. It was the maintenance of human institutions, reestablishment of orderly governments and preservation of civilization itself in Europe.

PEACE IS GOAL.

"It is through such practical, workaday procedures that our country has sought to be helpful in a world filled with troubles. It may be admitted that our people have given little confidence to fine professions and pious phrases. They have placed small faith in plans to insure peace by the threat of using force. They want peace and will do their full part to assure peace. But they will sacrifice no part of their absolute control over their own destinies. They will assent to no international trusteeship to shape their future relations to the rest of the world."

SOLDIER HELD AS THIEF.

HONOLULU, T. H., Oct. 25.—Corporal Arthur L. Jacobs, stationed at Schofield Barracks, was arrested today on charges of embezzlement of funds from the post-office at Hamilton, Ohio, Jacobs' home, before he enlisted in the army.

Revenue Collectors Ordered to Report Alleged Law Violations.

turns. They say the lists have shown what rich men really are supporting the government, and have also disclosed those who are contributing little to the upkeep of the nation. They hope to write a new provision in the law which will permit the publication by newspapers of all amounts paid to the government.

The law as it stands today represents an attempt to provide complete publicity with a "joker" which all but nullifies that purpose. The senators who threw the Mellon tax plan out of the window and adopted their own, stood behind the Norris amendment which provided that the list of taxpayers, their addresses and the amount paid by them should be available for public inspection.

PROPOSITION FOUGHT BY OLD GUARD SENATORS.

The old guard senators fought this proposition, but they discovered in the end they could not defeat it. Well, the old guard may die, but it never surrenders. What did it do next? It continued in the law the old and conflicting provision that no part of any tax return should be "printed" or "published" in any way. This was the paragraph of the law that applied in the old days when no publicity at all was contemplated.

Unquestionably the framers of the new statute intended to leave it out or to modify it, for it seems ridiculous that the returns should be open to all sorts of public inspection, and yet the printing of them be made a penal offence.

WILD REVIEW FIGHT ON FLOOR OF CONGRESS.

If he is re-elected, President Coolidge unquestionably will recommend to Congress in his annual message the adoption of the Mellon plan of taxation. This will throw the whole fight once more on to the floor of Congress, and it is needless to say the publicity provisions in the law will be the storm centers of discussion. Senator Norris will fight to make the publicity clause effective. The old guard will renew its attack on it.

If the fight becomes bitter the senate blocs may write a provision into the bill providing for complete publicity of all tax returns showing the sources from which incomes are derived, the amount of non-taxable securities held by an individual, the exemptions claimed and all of the other intimate details that go to make up the history of each individual transaction with the government.

At present the law permits the inspection only of the list of tax payers and the amount paid by them. Under direction of the president, however, certain members of Congress and certain senators may see all of the tax returns to get whatever information they desire from them, also the tax officials of the states may likewise examine the federal returns. But the general public as yet is limited to the knowledge only of the net sum paid by each individual and corporation.

Those who recall the contention that big surtaxes do not make for large tax returns, but instead drive men to invest their money in idle non-taxable securities, are especially interested in the published list. Clearly some of the richer men who have turned in comparatively small amounts to the government must derive a good part of their incomes from non-taxable sources. It is possible, also, that some of these men last year lost considerable money in the shrinkage in value of securities held by them. One of J P Morgan's partners paid to the government a sum eight times in excess of that paid by Morgan himself.

WEEHAWKEN, N J, Oct 25.—A demand that Secretary of the Treasury Mellon and David H Blair, commissioner of internal revenue, be summoned immediately before the senate committee investigating the bureau to explain "by what authority they issued a warning threatening newspapers with fine and imprisonment if they published lists of taxpayers and income taxes paid by them" was made here today by Senator Robert M. La Follette

To prevent newspaper publication of income taxes of individuals or corporations would "subvert the will of congress," La Follette charged. The independent presidential candidate arrived here today from Syracuse Late in the day he was scheduled to go to Aiken, Md, to rest over the week-end, before continuing his campaign in Baltimore Monday night In a telegram to Senator Couzins, Republican of Michigan, chairman of the committee, La Follette said that congress, in passing the publicity amendment to the last revenue bill, intended the public should know who is paying taxes and how much they pay"

CROSS WORD FANS FACING FEAST IN SUNDAY TRIBUNE

Brain-Spraining Triplets of Tongue-Tantalizing Puzzles Offered.

Cross-word-puzzle fans are to be treated to a five-letter word meaning banquet when tomorrow's TRIBUNE arrives at their breakfast tables. On one great double page of the magazine section they will discover three of the tantalizing puzzles—and one of them is nothing short of a four-letter word meaning enormous!

Think of sitting down to a puzzle with 107 horizontals and 104 verticals and you will see what a small chance there is for the Eastbay public to keep afternoon engagements tomorrow

SIXTY-TWO WEIRD WORDS.

The smallest of the three, however, is no Lilliput—or should one say "an eight-letter word meaning pigmy?" It contains sixty-two words running horizontally, and fifty-three vertically The middle-sized one, of more than fair proportions, has the dignity of noted authorship, having been composed, or whatever such a person should be called, by Kathleen Norris, the famous novelist

This name alone is enough to assure the ardent two-dimensional puzzlist that there will be a minimum of such grizzled veterans as "ate," "era," "pa" and "do," and that the three-toed sloth and the notes of the musical scale will be permitted to take a much-needed Sunday rest in the thesaurus.

Just to give one more indication of the sort of mental feast that is to come, be it known that this puzzle contains one fourteen-letter word and two fifteen letters each!

SKIDDING TO AVERNUS.

In addition to all this, there are some interesting variations played on the cross-word-puzzle theme in a fantastic creation by the noted artist, Herb Roth, and others, entitled "The Puzzler's Dream." The puzzler is graphically shown following in the footsteps of Dante, finding the descent of Avernus anything but easy. For he is made to guess the meanings of weird contortions of words and figures which make the ordinary cross-word puzzle seem about as difficult as finding the missing letter in Oak-and

Even that is not all that will appear on pages eight and nine of The TRIBUNE magazine section tomorrow. Puzzlers are advised to get an early start so as to be well on their way before the answers come out the following Sunday

Bobbed Hair Is Hit by Art Critic; Bare Necks Ugly

BERKELEY, Oct. 25.—Art and bobbed hair came to blows today.

Prof. Eugene Neuhaus, whose art appreciation classes at the University of California are among the most popular on the campus, rejoices in the edict from centers of fashion that bobbed hair is doomed to go.

Women's necks, he said, should never have been uncovered to the world. Here are the art critic's own words on the subject

"Most women's necks are ugly and should be covered up There are exceptions to every rule, of course, but I am talking from the standpoint of the masses To be in style women foolishly and apishly copy everything held up to them as 'smart' To be in style and fashionable does not always mean to be beautiful"

Mrs. Shaw Calls Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a God-Send to Sick Women

Cambridge, Me.—"I suffered terribly with pains and soreness in my sides. Each month I had to go to bed, and the doctor told me I simply had to go under an operation before I could get help. I saw your advertisement in the paper, and I told my husband one day to get me a bottle of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. Before I took the third dose I felt better. I took it four times a day for two years, getting better all the time, and now for four years I don't have any pains. After taking the medicine for two years I had another child—a lovely baby girl now four years old—the life of our home. I do praise this medicine. It is a Godsend to women who suffer with female troubles and especially for pains at the periods. I surely was very bad once, and I know that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound saved me from an operation."—Mrs. JOSIE M. SHAW, Route No. 1, Cambridge, Maine.

EX-OFFICIAL IS GIVEN JAIL TERM

E. F. Peterson, former county farm adviser, and for years a prominent resident of Hayward, is in the county jail today serving a five-day sentence imposed late yesterday by Superior Judge J. S Koford for contempt of court.

Peterson was found guilty of contempt of the court's order to pay up $860 in back alimony to his divorced wife, Lulu Petersen-Hansen when it was shown in court that Peterson paid numerous other debts from the proceeds of the recent sale of cattle, but failed to pay the sum due his wife for the support of their two children.

Peterson has been before the court on numerous occasions in connection with the alimony matter.

TODAY'S SHORT STORY

by Ad Schuster

THE RETURN OF CHIN SING

CHIN SING stood on the corner, his hands under his blouse. The wind chilled his ankles and slapped his linen trousers around his aged shins. Chin Sing stooped forward and gazed through his slits of eyes at the endless stream of men and women who passed through Chinatown. He was almost as motionless as the Indian in front of the cigar store across the street.

"Look, there is a picture. If that old fellow isn't a type!" If the exclamation from a girl who halted her companions reached the ears of the old Chinese, it did not register in this countenance. Of course he was a type. He was a piece of scenery, a stage prop, and that was why Loo Fat paid him each week to stand by the doorway of the restaurant. After a while he would go upstairs and more of these Americans would point him out. Chin Sing did not understand but he asked no questions. He wished he could go back to China.

"Lotta folks upstairs." He turned to climb slowly up into a room full of good smells, tobacco smoke, and shrill cries. The restaurant of Loo Fat catered to the Chinese trade knowing it would bring the other, for Loo Fat was wise in the ways of the Americans. The new and shiny chop suey places were no longer a novelty, and the man who would succeed in charging high prices to white men must have something different. So Loo Fat tolerated the Americans and lavished attention on the Celestials, even paying some few, among whom was Chin Sing, to be conspicuous.

At the top of the stairs the old man stopped and shouted his wants in a thin treble. The order was echoed by a waiter and repeated again in deep bass by a vegetable cutter in the kitchen. To Chin Sing this was an old story; to the customers it was real life out of old China and a most interesting performance. Over an odd looking dish which would be certain to attract attention and an order from the Americans, Chin Sing waved his chop sticks. This was an easy job for there was plenty to eat. But it would take money to go back to China.

He was getting old and they were fighting back where he used to live. If he could get back there, just once, he would join the army, it didn't matter which army, and go to his death as had his honored father.

"Look at that old man in the corner. Did you ever see such a fierce expression?" Chin Sing did not hear. He was not in the corner but in China brandishing a large sword for Sun Yat Sen.

From behind the desk Loo Fat sang out an order and the old Chinese awakened and began to attack his food with elaborate evidence of relishing each bite. Loo Fat was right, a man must enjoy his food if the white men and women are to be expected to buy. All the same he would go back to China.

He evolved his plan from a stray bit of gossip he picked up on the street and lost no time in putting it to practice. Chin Sing, the peaceful fixture of the restaurant, took to the sidewalk a tiny store of opium and offered it for sale to those who passed. There was no one who would buy, but many who stared incredulously at a man who could be so bold or so insane as to brave a law so openly. Within an hour a policeman had him in tow and Chin Sing was taken to jail.

Of what followed he had little understanding. The old man who told him how wicked he had been was a federal judge and the crowd who looked at him with ill-concealed disgust took him for a common peddler of dope. Well, he was used to being looked at.

"What did he say happen to me?" Chin Sing asked the jailer when he was returned to the cell.

"Six months in jail, one dollar fine, and deportation," was the answer.

"Six months, yes; one dolla, yes; and what that other?"

"Deportation. Back you go to China. We don't want you in this country."

Chin Sing nodded solemnly and as solemnly he served his time.

"China man right," he said as they took him to the boat. "China man right when he say Uncle Sam send you back when you break big law. One dolla, pretty cheap."

GREAT GAMBLES

Gambling is quite naughty. In fact, it is a crime under lots of circumstances. Some kinds of gambling are just too wicked for anything—Chinese lotteries and poker and horse race betting, all very vicious in my community.

I always feel very conscience stricken when sociability seems to demand that I take a hand in a little game of bridge at a half a cent a point.

When one loses $2.43, one is so apt to remember sorrowfully that one should have bought the baby a couple of new shirts instead. And even when one wins 50 cents, nice conscientious people regard it as tainted money, ill gotten gain.

I do hope our little gambles are not going to count against us in the hereafter. Lots of very earnest pastors are quite sure they will.

All the same, of course, life would have been sort of tame and unprogressive without our magnificent gamolers. There would not have been much civilization.

The fellows that invent things, or who build railroads, or who start new towns, or establish great factories, or found newspapers, or who strive for aviation records and all those things—well, we may call it vision, enterprise, or all sorts of other jolly names—but they certainly are handsome gamblers.

And really it is quite a sizeable gamble just falling in love and getting married and having babies—rather a good job these anti-gambling laws are not meticulously consistent.

Buying real estate, thank goodness, is a respectable gamble. One can, of course, lose more money that way than playing poker or buying a lottery ticket, and one can also make quite a bit in that line if one's guess is fairly sagacious—but that is all legitimate and perfectly proper.

Doctors are quite reckless gamblers, and so, apparently, are Christian Scientists sometimes, and certainly they each think the others are.

Why even pastors, even very very good earnest pastors are magnificent gamblers, banking sublimely on their faith and judgment and personal hunches.

Think what a splendid gambler the fine honorable Christian pastor is who devotes his life to his flock for $60 a month in the fine belief that he will reap his greater rewards hereafter. Really he is a more ardent gambler than the fellow who will know the result of his gamble tomorrow morning and leaves himself a loophole for recovery.

Geniuses are always gamblers, many, many of them have starved themselves and their families and staked their very lives upon the success and fulfilment of their dreams.

Where is a greater gambler than the man who emigrates, starts life all over again in a new strange country? Countries are proud of their courageous colonists, the grants (particularly when they have made good—not so much when they fail) and we thrill with the stories of those valiant pioneer gamblers who took such amazing chances and risked everything, including their personal comfort, their very lives. Rather awful if this sort of gambling were a legal crime like other lotteries.

All the same I heard a good pastor devote his entire Sunday sermon to the sin, the vice, the crime of gambling, just a little while ago. But he specifically mentioned cards and greedy oil investments and betting on prize fights—he wasn't really chiding the women of his congregation for getting married and trying to raise good children. He really wasn't chiding the men of his congregation for taking magnificent business chances. He wasn't really reproaching himself for being an underpaid pastor when he might be earning a much surer and more prosperous living in the business world.

Circumstances alter cases. And perhaps the most reckless and magnificent gamblers are the ones who will enjoy Heaven most.

CHAS. FOWLER,
Sec'y.-Treas.

THE Bible in the public school discussion has brought in some fine letters.

Folks are beginning to think and express themselves on a subject that is, after all, FOR THEM TO DECIDE.

In the final analysis it is what you want or don't want that settles the question one way or the other.

This woman says that AMERICAN IDEALS ARE AGAINST IT.

Dear Geraldine:

There is much controversy about reading the Bible in the public schools. It should be turned down by an immense majority.

The home is the place to teach religion; there is no excuse; there is plenty of time, and Saturdays and Sundays the churches can attend to the religion of their attendants.

Keep public schools, religion, and politics apart. Put the Bible reading in the schools, and it is the entering wedge, the end of the public schools as we know them now; it will only be a matter of time till other concessions are asked for.

Why should we take a step backwards? The reading of the Bible will be putting religion in the schools. There is no use to mask it under any other name. What has helped our country grow? All we need is to look at other countries where religion, politics and schools are in the same hands—how do they rate? Why follow their lead? We have outgrown all that.

If there is no religious significance in reading the Bible, why not use placards with the great truths of morality printed in large type and call the attention of the pupils at odd times to these? (not at a stated time each day, as this would make for habit and defeat its purpose).

When the matter is sifted right down to the bed-rock, I think, it isn't their own children the Bible readers are thinking of, for any one with common sense knows there is more than ample time to teach religion after school hours; but it is the other fellow's kids they are reaching out their claws after—and this seems about the only way they'll ever get them.

A friend told me he left his own country because he had to pay taxes to support a church he did not believe in and did not want his children to be taught in. He said this was a glorious country where he could send his children to school and then to a church he believed in. And there are those who would bring about the very thing he complained of—if they could.

They have no right to take even an hour a week to teach religion in the schools. We all pay taxes for these schools; which religion are we to be taught? Who is going to do the teaching? The stage is set, now the fighting begins! Send my children to run the streets for that hour if I refuse to have them taught your religion? Huh! Well, I guess not!

Then again: you who are fixing things all up so nicely to suit yourselves, don't forget that this is America—equal rights to every man—you can't put your Bible in the schools and deny the other fellow the right to put his there also.

You've got to read the old testament also—are you willing to have it read from cover to cover to your young children?

Then there's the Koran, the Book of Mormon, The Vedas, the books dealing with the system of Confucianism, and every other bible of every other system that can be found to have a follower in the American Public Schools.

Be fair! Equal rights to all! This is America! This may take all day and there may be little time left for the regular studies, and the churches may lose their [illegible], but when [illegible], we can teach the children to read and write at home. AN ATOM.

(Name and address given.)

"Perplexed" wrote us recently, telling of her unfortunate plight. With a good education, but no "experience," she was forced to do the hardest of physical labor to exist. "How," she asked, "was one to gain experience unless given a chance?"

This letter answers her and tells of the marvels a change of mind can work.

Dear Geraldine:

This is my first contribution to your column, but as I would like a word with "Perplexed," thought this a good opportunity to contribute my mite.

Now, Perplexed states that she is 41 years old, has lost her husband and is in financial stress—has a good education, must work, but can find no occupation that is pleasing to her. She is not surprised at the number of suicides that are committed.

Well, to start with. I too, am 41 years old, have had losses in my family and been in financial stress, but was not fortunate in having a good education, as education is measured today. I had also to work, but as my education was nothing to boast of, I was forced to accept the first thing in the line of employment that came along, although I had hoped for better. Later, during many dark months, I, too, was not surprised at all the suicides.

Just at this point a dear friend of many years standing called on me and had a long talk. I will not attempt to go into detail and relate all that she said, but I can give you the substance of her talk, which was like a slap in the face to me at the time. But after nursing my hurt feelings a few days and mentally reviewing her talk, I decided she was about right, and I would take a chance and follow her advice.

She said in the first place that I was too self-centered. All I thought about was me, my-and-mine. She said I had no patience, was too proud, and self indulgent, also suffered much from melancholia. In fact she said, "You are always going around feeling sorry for yourself and airing your troubles with the hope that everybody else will feel sorry for you, too. Now," she said, "you see you have never gotten anywhere going on that way, so buck up. Have a little stamina; show yourself and the world that you are better and bigger than your troubles, and instead of feeling sorry for yourself, think how very fortunate you are that you have all your faculties and health. Instead of counting your troubles, count your blessings. Instead of meeting people with a long face and a sad tale of woe, greet them with a smile and a cheery word. Instead of thinking about yourself all the time, give the people with whom you come in contact with a thought once in a while. There is always someone, somewhere, badly in need of just what we have to give.

"It does not have to be money. It might be a word of encouragement, a smile or some simple thing that anyone could give—for when you are doing something kind for someone else, you are not usually thinking about yourself, and you become more whole-hearted.

"Then," said my friend, "put your pride in your pocket, accept what you have to do now, and time and diligent digging will bring you something better."

And, Perplexed, let me say just this—that it all worked, and worked far, far better than I ever thought or hoped for. The old troubles in the course of time faded one by one.

It worked for me, why not try it yourself, so long as it does not cost anything but a big effort on your part?

INTERESTED.

It takes courage to step out for yourself and leave pity behind. Cling self pity is such a comfortable and effortless state to be in.

Two hundred and fifty-two million seven hundred and fifty thousand full-sized incandescent electric lamps were sold in the United States last year. At the same time 170,000,000 miniature electric lamps were sold. This latter amount would more than provide a lamp for every person in the country.

Our Children By Angelo Patri

HURRY UP.

There's too much hurry about the education of children both at home and in the school. "Hurry up," is about the first commandment for the American child.

"Run down to the store and get me a loaf of bread, child. And hurry up. When you go by the butcher's, tell Mr. Fritz to send me a pound and a half of upper round and ask him to hurry it along."

Really now, have you told a child to do something within this day without tacking on "Hurry up?" If you have you are a rare guardian. "He dawdles so." "She takes all year to go an errand." "I couldn't wait for her. I'll have to do it myself."

Children should be prompt in executing any errand. They should not dawdle along the way. Wasting time is not good for anyone, particularly for little children. But why the hurry up? Wouldn't it do to say, "and come right along without stopping?" Hurry up has such a suggestion of breathlessness.

And I cannot get over the notion, although I've read the experiments of the psychologists who say hurrying is good for us mentally, that time is necessary if a right good job is to be accomplished. I think I can do a better job if I work promptly and evenly and allow myself a margin for the polishing at the end. If I have to work under forced power on a "hurry up" job I'm always afraid it looks like one.

I'm afraid that if children continue to do a "hurry" up job in school, snatching courses as they hustle by in their mad race to catch at least six months before time has checked them up, that when their job is completed it will lack finish and polish and be wobbly where it ought to be rigid and show clear spaces where it ought to be tight filled.

Education, it seems to me, ought to have a more leisurely, a more accustomed air, than it bears nowadays. More like the mathematics master I used to have and less like the lady who taught free hand drawing.

She would come pattering into the room, watch chain flapping and bobbing, bangles jangling, eyes snapping, while she thrust a pencil in and out of her hair. "Boys, boys, hurry, hurry. You do waste time so. Hurry," while the mathematic teacher would swing into the room just as the recitation bell rang, big, easy, assured, and without an extra gesture begin: "Continue yesterday's solution, Martin. To the boards, gentlemen."

At the close of the hour the lady would still be calling, "Hurry, hurry. You boys waste time fearfully. The hour is over and nothing is done. You must hurry or we won't finish this term," while he would say smiling in calm serenity, "We have finished the chapter. Tomorrow we will search it for some high lights of interest. I can promise you a full hour."

What use is an education that affords no high lights of interest—no full, gorgeous hours with a master? We have all the time there is. Why not use it?"

Mr. Patri will give personal attention to inquiries from parents or school teachers on education and development of children. Write him in care of the paper, enclosing self-addressed, stamped envelope for reply.

A WITCH DRESS.

"Joan," asked Betty Cut-out, "won't you try on my witch dress for me? You're just the same size I am, so I can be sure it fits right if I fix it up on you."

"Of course you can," answered Joan, putting aside the sewing she was doing on her own costume to wear to Betty's Halowe'en party.

Betty slipped the dress on over Joan head and then tied on the cape that went with it. "There!" she declared. "That's just the way a real witch used to dress when they rode on broomsticks. I guess Now slip it off and I'll help you make the dress you're going to wear at my party."

Color the witch's dress all over with your black crayon, leaving the blouse under the cape white and the moon yellow. Color lightly around the bat which is painted on her skirt.

MY HUSBAND'S LOVE

DARKNESS.

IT lacked but five minutes of 3 o'clock, the hour Lillian had named, when I reached the apartment house.

If I possessed my conscientious scruples as to the trick I had played upon Bess Dean, they had been completely obliterated by Lelia's gratitude, pathetic in its relation of how much she had suffered. I was anxious to tell Lillian of the incident, but my first glance at her showed me she was too absorbed in the affair of the furs to have a second for anything but them.

She welcomed me warmly but abstractly.

"Put your things in the bedroom," she said. "Don't leave anything in here. And you'd better stow your things out of sight as much as you can. We're going to use that room for a 'conference' after a while."

Her lips twisted into a smile as she made this astounding statement, and she moved toward the door saying:

"I'll be back presently."

She swirled out, and it was well after 4 o'clock when she returned, accompanied by a brisk, gray-haired little man whom she introduced as Mr. Lowell, and who, was exteremely excited, but trying to hide it.

The sight of the furs in the trunk had made me believe that nothing could surprise me, but Dicky's appearance with a wild-eyed young chap, who looked like my early conceptions of a Greek god, accomplished that feat with dispatch.

I managed to return my husband's perfunctory nod with composure equal to his, however, and to acknowledge the introduction to the wild-eyed youth, who answered, it appeared, to the name of Pangborn. But he never finished his greeting of me, because, even as Dicky spoke my name, he caught sight of the elderly man, rushed toward him and stopped midway, hesitating, abashed.

"Oh! Cousin Tom!" he quavered.

The brisk little man came forward quickly, and, reaching up, patted the tall youth's shoulder.

"It's all right, Hal, lad," he said, his voice tremulous.

Lillian threw open the door leading to the bedroom.

"Sorry to interrupt," she said crisply, "but the reunion stuff will have to wait awhile. Please come in here, and after you hear us go out, do not speak until we come back. Please open and shut that door leading into the hall, Dicky. Is it properly oiled?"

"Absolutely noiseless," Dicky answered, demonstrating his words. "So far, so good." Lillian commented. "Now, Madge——"

As fast as our feet could carry us, Lillian and I sped out of the apartment into the street and back again into the apartment house, up the rear stairs and then cautiously to the floor on which is our apartment. There, holding the door ajar, stood Mrs. Marks patiently waiting for us.

"It's all right, dearie," Mrs. Marks said in a hoarse whisper. "The man you're after is in the front room already with the door closed on him and Mollie."

"Hurry," Lillian whispered peremptorily, leading the way into the hall, and if I had had room for a scintilla of surprise I should have felt it at the sight of "Petey," pallid and perceptibly terrified following with Mrs. Marks in our wake.

We stole softly to the door leading into the bedroom, which, opened noiselessly to Lillian's touch, and then we filed into the room where there was only space for us to stand.

I noticed that Dicky and the two strangers were straining their ears toward the front roof, and that Dicky had his hand restrainingly on the arm of the Pangborn youth.

From the front room came Mollie Fawcett's voice, pleading with poignant anguish:

"Oh, Sam, I can't help but ask you once more! Won't you have pity? You know I don't love you, and you don't want an unloving wife. I'll promise never to see Hal again, if you only won't make—"

"You can bet your last cent you'll never see Hal again," the man addressed as Sam growled savagely.

I saw Dicky clap a hand over young Pangborn's mouth and push him back from the door.

"That isn't the question," the savage voice from the other side of the door went on. "What you're going to decide before another five minutes is whether your precious Hal is going to get out of the country scot free, or whether he's going to do a nice long stretch in prison. I told you before. Marry me today and hand over those furs you've hidden away from me so long, or take the consequences. I know where to find him, and he'll have the handcuffs on him before twenty-four hours, unless he does the sensible thing and puts a bullet into his brain. How about it? What's your answer? Quick now."

The girl gave a stifled little moan, then her voice rose despairingly.

"Oh! I'll do it, everything, anything, but—what a beast you are! You know Hal never stole those furs. He bought them from you, every one of them!"

"Of course, he did!" The man's voice was mockingly triumphant, and I saw the elderly man start, and look meaningly at Lillian.

"Shall I tell you how I turned the trick? No, not till the sky pilot has said the 'I pronounce you' thing. A wife can't testify against her husband, you know. Come here, you pretty thing, and give papa a kiss. I'll teach you how to forget that booby, Hal—"

I saw Lillian nod to Dicky, and as a despairing little scream broke from Mollie's lips, he slid back the door, and sprang through the opening, closely followed by Lillian and young Pangborn, with the rest of us crowding after. Then as Sam whirled to face us, I heard Dicky shout.

"Look out! Madge!"

I saw Dicky bend and rush toward the man named Sam as he had done in his football days.

But I had seen something else the moment before, something that lent the swiftness of desperation to my feet, and enabled me to leap between Dicky and the other man, and face point blank the vicious-looking pistol which he had whipped from his belt and leveled at my husband.

Something roared in my ears, something that tore at my ear drums and filled my nostrils with an acrid odor.

Forms swept past me. Pangborn and his elderly cousin leaped upon the man and bore him to the ground. But Dicky—Dicky was not helping.

I turned about sharply and almost fell over something that lay on the floor. It was Dicky, crumpled up at my feet. A strange paralytic calm seemed to encompass me as I bent over him.

I felt as if I were perfectly contained. My eyes took in every detail very clearly.

I reached out and touched his face mechanically. My fingers came in contact with something damp, watery, something that covered them and gave them a crimson hue.

It was blood. It must come from that little hole there in the center of his forehead, a bit bruise in the flesh it seemed to be, a cut absurdly small to give off so much blood.

Someone caught me under the arms and lifted me up and Lillian clutched me to her breast and held me tight, sobbing. That seemed very strange indeed. I alone was calm. I alone seemed able to avoid hysteria. It was all very plain.

Dicky lay there on the floor dead, with a bullet hole through his head.

Faces receded. A window at which I stared became a blur.

A cold mist seemed to envelop my body—and then sweet oblivion.

I awoke in a strange room, with the odor of disinfectants in my nostrils, mingling with the scent of honeysuckle. Outside through a wide window I could see the tops of trees and the cerulean sky in the background. From somewhere came the humming of bees and the chirrup of happy birds.

I turned slightly and almost instantly a face intruded between me and the light. It was Lillian.

"Where is Dicky?" I asked.

I intended to speak loudly and firmly, but my voice sounded very weak and squeaky indeed.

"How do you feel?" Lillian asked. "Oh, how I have been waiting for this moment! We thought you would never come out."

She thought I would never come out! Out of what? What had happened to me.

With sudden vigor I raised myself on my elbow and stared into a looking glass. I could not recognize my own face. It was that of an old woman. But worst of all it was disfigured with a raw, red wound. And my hair was snow white.

Memory flooded over me with a rush and I sank back on the pillow, with a low moan.

"Dicky is dead," I whispered. "Tell me, Lillian. Am I dreaming?"

Lillian dropped to her knees by the bed and buried her head against me. Her sobs told me the whole terrible truth. It was not a dream. The blood on my fingers. The little red hole in Dicky's forehead. Oh, he was dead, dead.

As if she wished to take up my attention, Lillian started in telling me what had happened.

Sam had gone to jail. Mollie had not been guilty at all. Dressed in boy's clothes she had shadowed the gang to get evidence against them. Dicky had rescued her in time to prevent a murder.

But I did not want to hear of it at all. The world had gone into the eclipse for me. I wanted to be left alone with my grief.

"Go away," I pleaded. "Go away and let me die."

However, just wanting to die does not accomplish the end. Somehow I had to live, it seems. Somehow I had to be spared, a scarred faced, white-haired old-young woman, a living example of the futility of our petty struggles.

Perhaps that was why I was spared—to be an example of futility. Just when Dicky was vindicated. Just when we were about to be tremendously happy, there came the inevitable spectre, death.

Was it a visitation upon me because of my petty jealousy and my mean litle suspicions? Is death a thing that comes as punishment? Or does it creep into our lives because it is part and parcel of the universal scheme?

THE END.

Considering how often the convenient "eli" finds its way into Cross Words, it is quite right to include this puzzle from New Haven. It is undoubtedly meant for freshmen, for despite a loose center and several unkeyed letters it shouldn't be too difficult.

Uncle Wiggily

by Howard R. Garis

UNCLE WIGGILY AND THE FALLING LEAVES.

The telephone in Uncle Wiggily's hollow stump bungalow rang "ring-a-ling" one day. Nurse Jane was soon talking to Mrs. Twistytail, the lady pig.

"Oh, I would love to come over and visit you," said the muskrat lady, "but I'm afraid to go through the woods alone. You know the Bob Cat nearly caught Uncle Wiggily yesterday. Only that Mr. Turtle kindly nipped the bad chap's silly little tail, Uncle Wiggily's ears would have been nibbled. Since then the Bob Cat has been hiding in the woods, waiting to catch Uncle Wiggily.

"And I'm afraid, Mrs. Twistytail, that if I went through the woods to your house, the Bob Cat might get me. So I had better not come over to see you. And you, had best stay in your pen. We don't want the Bob Cat to catch us."

"What's this about Bob Cats?" asked Uncle Wiggily, who came into the room just as Nurse Jane finished talking over the telephone. So the muskrat lady told him.

"Nonsense!" laughed the bunny rabbit gentleman. "If you want to visit Mrs. Twistytail, I'll go with you. I'll take you through the woods. Come on!"

"But what about the Bob Cat?" asked Nurse Jane. "The Bob Cat is hiding in the woods to get you. Uncle Butter, the goat, told me he saw the bad chap."

"I'm not afraid," laughed brave Uncle Wiggily. "I'll take some sticky fly paper with me and if the Bob Cat comes to get us I'll stick him!"

"Oh, but you are brave!" murmured Nurse Jane, her eyes shining with pride. "Now, I'm not afraid."

So, taking a bit of sticky fly paper to catch the Bob Cat with, in case he ran after them, Uncle Wiggily walked with Nurse Jane through the woods to the home of Mrs. Twistytail, the lady pig. And the Bob Cat didn't slink after them in the least.

"I don't believe the Bob Cat is in the woods at all," said Uncle Wiggily, when he had safely seen Nurse

The Bob Cat ran after the rabbit.

Jane to the door of the pig pen. "I shall throw away the fly paper."

This he did, but on his way home, all of a sudden, he heard a rustling in the bushes and out popped the Bob Cat.

"Ha! Ha!" snickered the bad chap. "I didn't dare jump out at you, Uncle Wiggily, while Nurse Jane was with you. I thought maybe she might stick me with her needles. But now that you are alone I'm going to nibble your ears."

"Oh, dont! Please don't" begged the bunny. Away he hopped as fast as he could hop, but the Bob Cat, with his silly little tail, ran after the rabbit. For a time Uncle Wiggily kept ahead of the bad chap, but the Bob Cat came nearer and nearer.

"Oh, what shall I do?" cried the bunny. And then the trees in the forest took pity on the poor bunny gentleman. All at once the wind shook the trees. Down showered thousands of dried leaves. The falling leaves piled on top of Uncle Wiggily and covered him from sight, as they had done, years before, to the Babies in the Wood.

Along came racing the Bob Cat to where he thought Uncle Wiggily was. But all the bad chap saw was a pile of leaves.

"Bah! I can't eat leaves!" snarled the Bob Cat. "Where did that rabbit go?" And all the while Uncle Wiggily was hidden from sight under the pile of falling leaves. The Bob Cat looked here and the Bob Cat looked there, but he never thought of looking under the leaves. And then, after a while, the Bob Cat slunk away.

"Thank you, kind leaves, for saving me," said the bunny, as he crawled from beneath the heap. Then he went safely home. And if the huckleberry pudding doesn't slide down the banister rail and spill the beans all over the parlor rug, I'll tell you next about Uncle Wiggily and the roast apples.

Fashion News Notes

PARIS, Oct. 25. — Fur-lined coats will be the outstanding feature of women's wear in the coming winter season and beautiful models are being prepared by the Parisian furriers and tailors of the Champs-Elysees and Rue de la Paix. For the wealthy, these coats will be lined with sable, mink, or other rich lightweight fur; for the modest purses rabbit skin will be used, dressed to resemble any fur you like. Deliciously cozy will be the new garment of reps, kasha, or some thick silk material with its [illegible] but warm lining. In form the winter coat will resemble the summer model, nearly full length and with straight and scanty skirts. As for colors, brown cloth and brown furs promise to be the most popular, though the all black coat continues to be a favorite. Those who need to limit their dress expenditure will welcome the new coat as providing a way of utilizing the now shabby fur coat of past years.

Astrakhan and moleskin are sponsored at present by one leading furriers. His moleskin coats are trimmed with biege fox collars and his coats of black astrakhan with blue fox.

Even in a season which has forbidden the waistline there crops up here and there a rebel. Such is a frock of white laine with a hem of silver lace. It has a positively Victorian waist line to which the full skirt is gathered.

NEW YORK, Oct. 25.—The flat purse of striped silk is a smart necessory to the present-day tailored costume. Black and white, black and dull red, black and green stripings are shown. There is usually an enameled clasp to match the stripe.

While the long fur coat is in vogue today, the fur coat of hip length is correct with a street or sports frock. Some of the fur jackets have plaid silk linings.

Checked crepe de Chine is a new material for lingerie.

MARTHA'S VACATION.

Chapter One.

Martha Jones lived with her mother and grandmother. Her father had died two years before. She was an only child and was petted quite a bit. Her grandmother always took her part whenever her mother asked her to do something.

One vacation Martha was sent up to her aunt's house. When she arrived there her uncle met her at the station and took her to the ranch. She changed her clothes and then came down to supper. They had soup, beans, bacon and baked potatoes. List of all they had cake and stewed prunes. Martha wasn't used to eating what she didn't like, so when the soup was put before her she said, "I don't care for that." Her uncle said, "You must eat what is on the table." She had a hard time keeping back the tears, so her uncle said, "You may leave the table until you feel better." At eight o'clock Mr. Smith (Martha's uncle) said, "bedtime, children." His children went to their rooms but Martha said "Please let me stay up only a half hour." Her uncle only said, "Bedtime, off with you." Martha thought he was the meanest man living, but she went off to bed.

Chapter Two.—Her First Day There

At half past six the next morning Martha was awakened by her aunt. "Wake up Martha dear," said her aunt. "Oh, Aunt Mary, please let me sleep a little later." "No, my children have been up over an hour," said her aunt. Martha got up slowly.

When she came down to breakfast she saw that they going to have bacon and eggs and toast.

After breakfast her two cousins started to pick up the dishes. "Aren't you going to help, Martha?" asked her aunt. "Y-yes," said Martha. She began slowly to pick them up.

When they were through with the dishes they went out to feed the chickens and to water their gardens. Martha just watched them do that.

At nine o'clock they went upstairs to clean their rooms. Martha said she didn't know how to. Aunt Mary showed her how. Martha often wished Grandma was there that morning.

At half past eleven Aunt Mary went upstairs to see how Martha got along. She was just dusting the last piece of furniture when her aunt came in.

"Now Martha, answer me truthfully: how do you like to clean your own room?" asked Aunt Mary. Martha was ashamed, but she said, "Honest, Aunt, I enjoyed it, although I had to ask May to show me how to smooth the covers out and sweep."

That afternoon Martha was sorry she hadn't learned to patch quilts. Her aunt showed her how and she liked it very much.

Things went on like this every day except Martha learned a lot, so at the end of six weeks she was sorry to leave.

THE POOR FISHERMAN.

Chapter 1.

Once upon a time there was a poor fisherman with two children. His wife was very good and tried to help him in every way. One day as the fisherman was leaving home he said to his wife and children: "I will not be back for two weeks," and then he kissed them good-bye.

Chapter 2.

As he was out at sea a terrible storm came up and he had to row to the nearest shore, which was an island. He built himself a small cabin of rocks to shelter him during the night. In the morning he started out to fish. He fished all day but could not catch anything, but that night he pulled his net in and there was a beautiful mermaid! She begged him to let her go and promised if he would release her she would give him three wishes. He said "alright" and then rowed for home. When he reached home he told his wife the story and they wished for wealth, health and happiness. They got their wishes and lived happily ever after.

TWO BOYS AND THEIR ADVENTURES.

Once Tom said to Jim that they ought to go to the mountains for their vacation. Their mothers and fathers let them go. They started off and got about ten miles when they began to get tired. Jim went to sleep, but when he was asleep a mountain lion came and wanted to eat Jim and Tom, but Tom took his pistol and shot at the lion, but didn't hit him in the right place. The shot awoke Jim and he got his pistol and both boys killed the lion after a hard struggle.

They went home the next week after they had had a fine time.

When they got home their fathers said that they had earned a bounty for killing a lion and that Mr. Brown had saw them fight the lion. The boys got $30 each for killing the lion.

They had their names in The TRIBUNE, too.

They went to the mountains every year and killed lions.

WALTER CAMP TELLS WHY HE IS COMING TO BIG GAME

Winter League Baseball Clubs Will Open the Season Tomorrow With Games Scheduled On Many Grounds

CALIFORNIA FACING A TOUGH SITUATION SAYS FOOTBALL EXPERT

Other Clubs Will Have More Confidence Against the Bears and Will Go Into the Attack With More Enthusiasm, Thinks Walter.

By WALTER CAMP,
Special Correspondent of The TRIBUNE.
(Copyright, 1924, by the Consolidated Press Association.

(In this dispatch by Walter Camp may be found some of the reasons why Camp is passing up this season most of the big Eastern football classics which ordinarily claim his attention, and is preparing for a November tour that will take him to the Pacific Coast. Football interest, writes Camp, has reached a new peak of interest in the Far West. California, the old-time monarch of the Western gridiron, is in danger of being toppled from its throne, and Camp wants to find out who is going to do it—and why).

NEW YORK, Oct. 25.—Never for the last four years, the ordinary collegian's generation, has there been such a widely extended interest in the gridiron game on the Pacific Coast as is developing in this season's contests. California, having dominated for those four years, is now facing a situation which Andy Smith, the coach, has not before met. Two years ago he lost some good men; last year several others. As a matter of fact, there is only a trio of his veterans left, and this has quite properly encouraged all the opponents, and means that instead of going into the contests half beaten before they start, as they have for the last few years, hope will spring strong in their breasts all through the season. They will go into the attack with the belief that this year California may be pulled down from its eminent position.

One can better understand the chances by studying these opponents, taking a general resume of the big Conference teams on that side of the continent.

The University of Washington has a big, heavy powerful team; an aggressive, hard, rugged coach in Enoch Bagshaw, and a memory of having played Annapolis to a 14-14 tie in the last contest of their schedule. True, they were beaten by California, 9 to 0, last year, but it was a hard game, and in the meantime they had beaten Southern California 22 to 0, Montana 26 to 14, Washington State 24 to 7, Oregon 26 to 7, and the Oregon Aggies 14 to 0. That New Year's day game at Pasadena, where they tied the Navy, was a wonderful tonic for them, and if they maintain their superiority their schedule is comparatively light and they should be in the best of shape for their California game. They have one of the heaviest and most powerful teams on the coast.

Different Spirit Will Prevail at Stanford

Stanford has had two solid years of preparation for the advent of Glenn Warner. Andy Kerr has been drilling them in the Warner methods and has sunk home the fundamentals. He has shown them that work, not individual brilliancy, is the thing that earns results. And now the master, Warner, has them in charge. Somehow or other for many years the Stanford teams have struck one as being a light-hearted, happy-go-lucky, "I-can-do-it-when-I-want" kind of organization that may develop brilliant individuals and is powerless against the steady, continued work of a perfected organization like Andy Smith's, backed by as great an array of stars but all welded into the machine.

Glenn Warner is not the type that permits any such feeling, and even the work of his assistant, Kerr, as well as Thornhill, has brought Stanford back to a realization that in the old days of their early football, and before their peregrination into Rugby, they had under their old captains, like Paul Downing, a different kind of motto—hard work all the time and belief that the team that worked the hardest had the best chance to win. Still there seems to be a tendency to over-confidence, or at any rate self-satisfaction that worries Warner not a little.

Idaho May Make Trouble For the Other Elevens

Idaho has been coming fast, and although Stanford defeated them last year, 17 to 7, they showed that they are getting their grip on the gridiron and may make a lot of trouble for anybody. Idaho last year beat Montana 40 to 0, Washington State 14 to 0, tied Oregon in a scoreless game, defeated the Oregon Aggies 7 to 0, and Gonzaga 13 to 0, and only lost out to Henderson's Southern California team 9 to 0. They have in Matthews one of the ablest followers of Rockne's methods, and he has already begun to put the earmarks of the Notre Dame style on his teams.

Southern California has been coming along, knocking at the door of great possibilities for some seasons, and Elmer Henderson had laid out for this year one of the stiffest schedules his team has faced. In addition, he has lost very few of last year's players, has worked hard on his freshman possibilities of last year, and is going in on the belief that this is the year for Southern California to demonstrate. Besides California, Stanford, Nevada, Arizona and a few others, he has a game coming with Syracuse. Let it be distinctly understood Southern California is dangerous to all this season.

The Oregon Aggies now have Coach Schissler, who has handled the freshman teams at Nebraska and Lombard college. He has a team of big fellows of the rangy type, and ought to do reasonably well with them. Some even refer to the team as one of the "dark horses," but they will be pretty well known by Warner and Smith, as well as by Elmer Henderson, after they have played their first games in the heavy going of the field up there.

Exendine, who did such excellent work at Georgetown, is now handling Washington State college. He did some fine work with some rather mediocre material last year. This year it looks more promising, but Exendine should really have another year, and a fair chance of some first-class men before he can be fully measured.

Joe Maddock is handling Oregon, and the reports are that he is quite confident. It is a young, green team, but they are willing, and Maddock is the man to make enthusiasm grow.

Montana is a very recent addition to the Conference, and had some pretty hard bumps last year, but is likely to get on her feet in one or two more seasons. Stewart of Pittsburgh is coaching them.

"RED" GRANGE DOING HIS STUFF

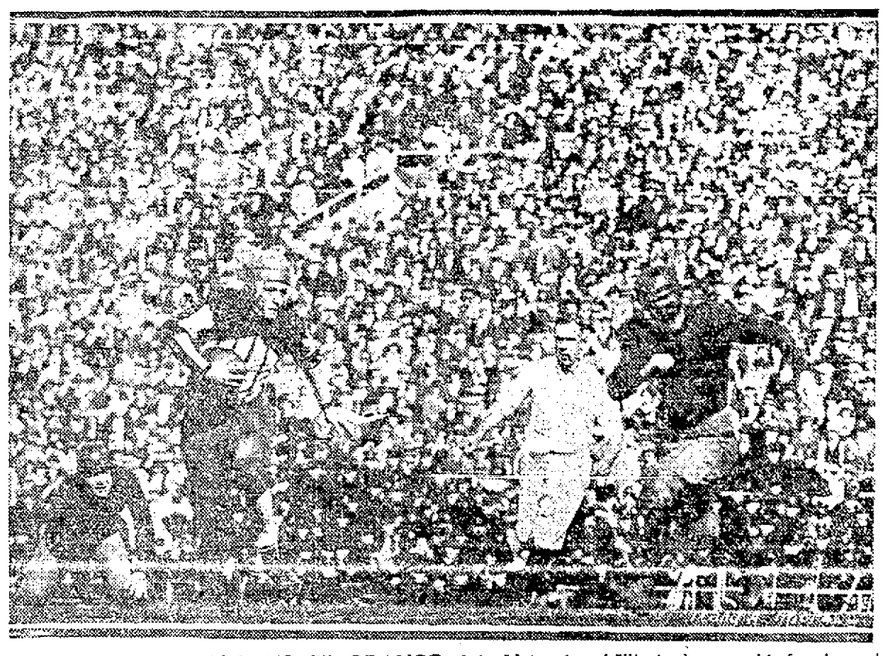

Photo shows HAROLD ("Red") GRANGE of the University of Illinois eleven on his fourth sparkling run with ball during the game against Michigan October 18, while 67,000 spectators were watching the famous athlete do his stuff. Grange, ace of the Fighting Illini, scored five touchdowns, four of them coming so quickly in the first period that Michigan never recovered from the shock. Photo shows him under way in full stride, with the Michigan warriors lunging desperately in his direction, but always too far away to drag him down. Illinois won, 39 to 14.

Berkeley High Winners in 7 to 0 Game

Technical Plays Poorly But Wins From Roosevelt Gridmen.

The two high school games yesterday in the Eastbay resulted in somewhat of upsets, but the favorite teams in both cases managed to win.

Berkeley high school's husky gridiron aggregation emerged the victor from its game with the St. Mary's preps by the small matter of one touchdown and a convert, the final score being 7 to 0.

Technical increased its lead in the O. A. L. race with a victory over the last place Roosevelt high team, 23 to 0. Both teams played ragged football and fumbling predominated the contest.

Clymer's punting was one of the features of the Berkeley high game. In the first quarter Tom Dee, Berkeley end, recovered one of Clymer's punts after it had been fumbled on the 20-yard line. In four lin plunges, the Berkeleyans were not able to advance the necessary ten yards and lost the ball on downs.

Later in the quarter the St. Mary's tossers gained two first downs but were finally forced to punt. Gavagan tried a 50-yard drop kick in the second quarter which was far short.

Berkeley's lone touchdown came in the third period when Clymer passed ten yards to Dougery, who ran the remaining twenty-five yards to the goal line. Clymer converted with a drop kick to conclude the scoring.

When Lopez, Roosevelt center, passed wild on the second play of the Tech-Roosevelt game and permitted the Bulldogs to score a safety, the contest was about over as far as naming the winner was concerned.

The Hansenmen played poor football from then on but succeeded in collecting 23 points.

The first touchdown came when Tom Osborne and Connie Rilliet bucked the ball down the field from the 45-yard line to the 5-yard line from where the former took it over on a tackle play. Schneider converted.

Harry Watkins provided one of the sensations of the game when he intercepted a forward pass and ran eighty yards to a touchdown. Captain E. Schneider followed this brilliant feat by converting again.

BOXING NOTES

On receipt of a request from the Michigan state athletic commission at Detroit, the New York state athletic commission directed its doctor to examine Dave Shade, Pacific Coast welterweight now in New York, who cancelled a contract to meet Bob Sage, in Detroit last night owing to an injury to his right thumb. Dr. P. M. Lichtenstein examined the thumb and in his report stated that Shade had a strained ligament which would necessitate his withdrawal from the ring temporarily.

Mike McTigue Ruled Out by Commission

Irish Champ Had Been Side-Stepping Tunney Too Long.

By FAIR PLAY.
SPECIAL BY WIRE TO THE TRIBUNE

NEW YORK, Oct. 25.—Mike McTigue's efforts to hang onto the world's light heavyweight championship for which he is entirely to light has cost him the right to box in New York state for a year. The state boxing commission ruled him out for his failure to accept a challenge of Gene Tunney the American champion in the class.

McTigue apparently realizing that he had not a chance of holding the title against so big and powerful a man as Tunney has been side-stepping Gene for a long time. It won't be necessary to do any side-stepping in these parts for the next twelve months for Mike can't box anybody.

Following Mickey Walker's battle against Jock Malone in Newark on Monday night, he will agree to tackle Dave Shade for the welter title.

This is a sure attraction for the late fall. Most people think it will be held in Jersey but all the dope is that New York will be the scene of the encounter.

Strader May Not Play In Olympic Game

Madigan's Star Fullback on Shelf With Injured Hand; Contest Should Be Close.

By DOUG. MONTELL.

After a layoff of a week the St. Mary's College eleven will swing into action again tomorrow afternoon at Ewing Field in San Francisco, meeting the Olympic club gridders in what should be one of the most evenly matched games of the season.

After their showings against Stanford and California, the Olympic club boys have gained a wide following and have, in a measure, lived down the early season defeat at the hands of the Argentian club and the tie played with the California Aggies.

While the clubmen cannot be expected to play as brilliant a game as against California a week ago, Coach Hollingberry's team is working overtime getting ready for the return game with the Agentian club on November 2 and the game with the Multnomah club at Portland and the Winged "O" boys will be ready to put their best foot forward tomorrow afternoon.

Few changes, if any, are expected in the lineup of the Post street organization. Coach Hollingberry announced this morning that as far as he knew the lineup would be the same that started against California Saturday at Berkeley.

Strader, who has been a young sensation as a line plunger in the St. Mary's games to date, sustained an injury to his hand in scrimmage Thursday night. At first it was feared that a bone had been broken but an examination disclosed the fact that it was nothing but a bad sprain. Madigan, however, is unwilling to risk additional injury to his star back and announced this morning that he would shift Ralph King from quarterback to fullback.

King has been a dependable substitute for Conlan at calling signals but Madigan's veteran quarterback is back on the job once more ready for action and King's build makes him an ideal substitute for Strader, although he will not be able to gain the yardage the St. Mary's lead is accustomed to.

St. Mary's tackles the Multnomah club in Portland a week from today and if Madigan's team comes through tomorrow's game without any additional injuries the Saints will be in a fair way to repeat their win of last year at the expense of the Winged "M" athletes.

Field is scheduled to start at 2:30 according to Graduate Manager Louis LeFevre with Wilson selected to Referee and Boles Rosenthal as Umpire.

Boxing Results

The following are the results of the boxing bouts at Dreamland ring, San Francisco last night: Jimmy Darcy won from Sailor Maley in the second round on a technical knockout. Sammy Compagno and George Spencer fought a draw. Jimmy Burns surprised and took the verdict from Eddie McGovern. Sammy Olson won from Billy Smith. Mike Doyle defeated Louis Garcia. Willie Singer stopped Johnny Drexel. Sidney defeated Johnny Martin.

NEW ORLEANS, Oct. 25.—Tommy Gibbons of St. Paul added another to his long string of victories when he knocked out Ted Jamison, Milwaukee light heavyweight in the first round of a scheduled 15-round bout here last night.

SACRAMENTO, Oct. 25.—Bobby Ertle, of Oakland, and Tommy O'Leary battled to another draw here last night in the best bout of the American Legion's seven card boxing show.

Dusty Miller, Vallejo, defeated Sailor Hughes of San Francisco in the main event.

Other bouts:

Jack Scott, Sacramento, beat Mickey Britton, San Francisco, Tony Vincent technical knockout over Jimmy Flynn, Los Angeles, in first round; Frenchie Coolman, Oakland, defeated Frank Hannah.

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 25.—George Rivers of San Francisco defeated Teddy Siler, Oakland lightweight, in a hotly contested main event at the Hollywood American Legion arena last night. Silva put up a clever fight, but his opponent's punches were more effective.

VANCOUVER, B. C., Oct. 25.—Vic Foley, local featherweight contender for the Canadian championship, had an edge over Bud Kelly of Seattle, in the ten-round main event of a boxing card here last night and won a diamond belt, symbolic of the Pacific coast featherweight championship.

Frankie Denny And Jim Darcy Meet Wednesday

PROMOTER TOMMY SIMPSON will offer another card of eight boxing bouts next Wednesday night, with Jimmy Darcy and Frankie Denny meeting in the main event. Teddy O'Hara and Young Dudley meet in the semi-windup.

The complete cards to be staged at the Oakland Auditorium follows:

Jimmy Darcy vs. Frankie Denny.
Teddy O'Hara vs. Young Dudley.
Young Nationalista vs. Harry Soo.
Lefty Cooper vs. Johnny Trambitas.
Ernie Owens vs. Johnny Burns.
Billy Wallace vs. Young Datto.
Frankie McCann vs. Richie King.
Mike Siegel vs. Angelo Pappas.

Pinelli Will Play for Joe Devine's Club

Seal Bosses Deny They Tried to Keep Johnson From Coming Here.

By EDDIE MURPHY.

Ralph (Babe) Pinelli, former Oakland third sacker, now of the Cincinnati's Reds and rated as one of the greatest third sackers in the major leagues, will be seen in action with Joe Devine's All Star team which will support Walter Johnson on the field at the Oakland ball park next Wednesday afternoon. "Babe" welcomed the chance to cutup again with some of his old teammates and he will play third base in "BABE" PINELLI, the game which will give Oakland and other fans around the bay their first opportunity of seeing the hero of the world series in action.

Although scheduled on a week day, this game promises to draw a big crowd of fans, as the Oakland ball park phones were ringing all day yesterday with people inquiring about reservations. Players in this game will give their best to make a real game out of it. Walter Mails' All Stars will be plenty strong with Ray Kremer, Earl Kunz and Walter Mails to do the pitching.

"Chick" Hafey, Taylor Douthit, Honus Mitze and Harvey Christensen are some of the other stars signed by Devine and he is now working to get Earl McNeeley in the lineup. He expects to hear from McNeeley today or tomorrow.

Charles Graham, business manager of the San Francisco club, said this morning that the directors of the transbay club would not make an attempt to keep Walter Johnson from pitching in Oakland on Wednesday. It was reported that George Putnam of the Seals was robbed of the date and that he would try to make Johnson pitch at San Francisco. Outnam was a bit peeved at Oakland landing Johnson, but Graham insists that it was never stated by a director of the transbay club that efforts would be made to talk Johnson into not pitching here.

Johnson said yesterday that he is to keep any dates that Scout Joe Engle makes for him, and he is dated for next Wednesday in Oakland, so he will be on the job. Also he will be ready with a pen and supply of ink to autograph baseballs for the kiddies.

Two Leagues To Usher In Bush Season

Thirty-Three Games Are Scheduled for Local Sandlots Tomorrow.

With the Pacific Coast League season over and most of the players now hanging around their favorite winter spots, the amateur and semi-pro tossers are ready to step into the limelight tomorrow morning with the playing of the first games in the Spalding Amateur League. From nine o'clock in the morning until five in the afternoon, teams of that league will be in action. The Eastbay League composed mostly of semi-pro players will usher in the season in the afternoon. Thirty-three games are on tap for tomorrow, so hundreds of players are hoping the weather man will treat them to a lot of sunshine.

The following Sunday will see another league open its season. The L. C. Broderick league of six or eight teams and strictly amateur will make its debut. Bill Crosby is president of this league and he announced last night that the schedule of games will be announced Tuesday.

Thirty of the games tomorrow will be played in the Spalding class A and class B leagues. The "A" games will be played at Lincoln Park in Alameda, San Pablo Playgrounds in Berkeley, Fruitvale Depot, and Melrose. A complete schedule of games will be found on this page.

The Eastbay league games will be played at San Leandro, Coast League Park and Lincoln Park. The Lincoln Park games start at 12:30 and the others at 2:30.

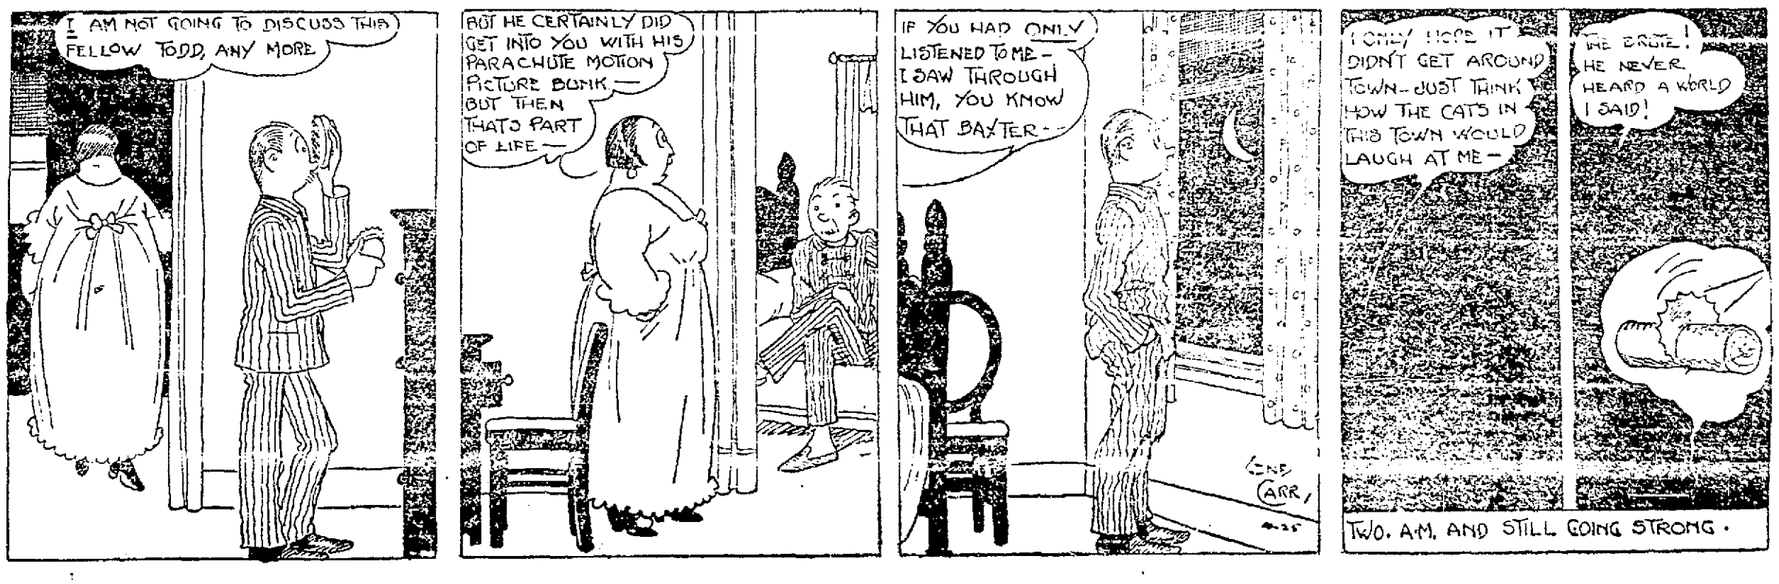
THE BAXTER BEASLEYS —By Gene Carr



I AM NOT GOING TO DISCUSS THIS FELLOW TODD, ANY MORE
BUT HE CERTAINLY DID GET INTO YOU WITH HIS PARACHUTE MOTION PICTURE BUNK— BUT THEN THAT'S PART OF LIFE—
IF YOU HAD ONLY LISTENED TO ME— I SAW THROUGH HIM, YOU KNOW THAT BAXTER—
I ONLY HOPE IT DIDN'T GET AROUND TOWN— JUST THINK HOW THE CATS IN THIS TOWN WOULD LAUGH AT ME—
HE BRAGGED! HE NEVER HEARD A WORD I SAID!
TWO A.M. AND STILL GOING STRONG.

FINANCIAL NEWS

BONDS MARKED BY IRREGULAR PRICE MOVES

Further Buying of High Grade Railroad Mortgages, But Market Not Uniform.

By GEORGE T. HUGHES.
BY CONSOLIDATED PRESS
LEASED WIRE TO TRIBUNE

NEW YORK, Oct. 25.—Irregular price movement characterized trading in bonds at the close of the week. There was further buying of high grade railroad mortgages but even here the market was not uniform. Atchison general 4s sold about 90 as they did on Friday. On the week this representative investment is up more than half point while others of almost equal merit are either down as much or unchanged. Nevertheless, the fact that the demand for this class of bonds keeps up so well is very impressive in view of the low yield they afford at present prices. The same observation may be made of the United States government list. On the week every issue, both coupon and registered, have made advances with the treasury 4s, making a new high for all time at 107.

Foreign bonds showed signs of reaction today. The new Germany 7s fell below 94 and the 8s below 105. Each of these bonds rallied substantially. For the present demand and supply in the German issue seems about that announced. French bonds are affected by talk about a new French loan. The only important piece of new foreign financing scheduled for next week is the $30,000,000 kingdom of Sweden loan carrying 5½ per cent coupons and to be offered around par. On the week net changes in foreign bonds have been in both directions. The average is slightly lower.

ST. PAULS RECOVER.

The feature of the speculative railway bonds today was the recovery in the St. Pauls which carried the 4s of 1925 above 70 for the first time in over three weeks. Next to the St. Paul, the St. Louis San Francisco bonds attracted the most attention. Each of these bonds has gained from one point and a half to two and a half points on the week. Chicago and Eastern Illinois 5s continued their rally today. Missouri Pacific 4s were a trifle higher.

Among the industrials anaconda copper 7s touched par. Bethlehem Steel 6s rallied to 96 and then dropped back again. The sugar bonds were also very steady today as they have ben during all the selling of their respective stocks.

Of the week's new financing the largest single offering was the $15,000,000 Cuban dominican sugar company, expected to yield 7.75. Next week the six per cent issue is expected under $15,000,000 of the central leather company. There also will be some equipment offerings, one for the Illinois Central.

Various Permits Are Applied For

The following applications have been received by the Railroad Commission:

M. V. Hastain for certificate to operate freight service between Elsinore and San Pedro, Wilmington, Long Beach, Los Angeles, Santa Ana, Riverside, Colton and San Bernardino.

Frank Roberson, to lease and sell, and Pickwick Stages, Northern Division, to rent and purchase, certain auto passenger lines operated between Fresno and Coalinga and intermediate points via Lemoore.

Los Angeles & Salt Lake Railroad company for authority to construct, maintain and operate a certain steam railroad track at grade across Monroe street within county of Los Angeles.

Southern Pacific company for authority to construct spur track across a portion of an unnamed street and across Bancroft avenue in the city and county of San Francisco.

COMMODITY NOTES.

PACKING HOUSE PRODUCTS.

CHICAGO, Oct. 25.—Market observers predict advancing prices for light hogs which have dropped $2 a hundred recently. The slump was followed by a sudden demand for heavy butcher hogs to supply Europe with lard. The light supply of hogs on farms, however, is expected to send prices up again when the lard demand eases off.

BEANS.

SANTA BARBARRA, Oct. 25.—California's crop of lima beans this year is estimated at 1,227,000 bushels, or about nineteen bushels to the acre. Forecast for other varieties indicate very short crops. Total California bean production this year is estimated at 1,940,000 bushels.

THE PRESIDENT'S SPEECH.

The people make the Government; the Government does not make the people. But the prosperity of the people is bound up with the financial policy of the Government. An administration which can reduce taxation and debt and can cut something from that enormous sum that is being paid out to run the very Government is saving money to every individual. How great is the necessity for prosperity and for the perpetuation of American rights was pointed out by President Coolidge in his address of Thursday evening.

"To my mind," said the President, "the practice of public economy and insistence upon its rigid and drastic enforcement is a prime necessity of the people of the United States." He showed that the yearly cost of national and local governments has reached a total of ten billions of dollars, or 93 per cent of the wages and salaries in the industrial plants, and equal to what the farmers receive for their year's output.

Since June 30, 1921, the Republican administration has reduced the yearly expenses of the Government by two billions of dollars, or by one-fifth of the total of national and local governmental expenditures. The accomplishment is one of magnificent proportions. It means an actual savings to every man and woman in the country. Added, it has paid off close to three billions of debt and reduced the interest payments by more than 120 millions a year. Figured out, the taxpayers of the United States have been saved $6,000,000 a day.

In a way these accomplishments are not spectacular for there is nothing visible with which to make comparison. One never knows the benefits of money saved unless he can experience loss of the same amount. Therefore it behooves the American citizen to consider these figures, to think of what they mean to him, whether he be a direct taxpayer or one who pays taxes by buying goods and paying rent.

The President's speech was packed with commonsense and entirely devoid of seducing generalities. He is anxious to be accepted for what he has done and what he stands for and in his address was painstaking to make his position clear upon all of the important issues. The millions who heard the address over the radio or who have read it in the prints cannot fail to be impressed with the calibre of the man. The Nation is fortunate in having Calvin Coolidge for President in this post-war time when a level head business sense, strong character and iron will are needed.

AMENDMENT DISCUSSION.

By this time most of the voters have received the booklets which carry the texts and arguments for the proposed amendments and initiative measures to be placed on the ballot a week from Tuesday. It is to be wondered how many will find the time to make the study and how many, having found the time, will consider there is material there for a fair weighing and estimation.

Assembly Constitutional Amendment Number 46, which will appear as proposal 3 on the ballot is aimed to provide a more workable plan for depositing public money. The present law provides for the deposit of State money in National Banks and the change would allow the state to deposit, also, money in its custody. Thus, interest would be earned on a number of funds which do not draw it now. The amendment includes, for instance, the funds for irrigating districts.

Rapidly growing sections of the state have met with some handicaps because of the law which allows for no increases in personnel in county offices until the Legislature has approved. The Constitutional amendment which is listed on the ballot as Number 8, will permit the Legislature to provide "that such additional deputies or assistants as may be necessary and proper shall be elected to the principal officer in any county office during his term in office" and that the Legislature may provide that the compensation of the deputy or assistant may be increased during the term of the principal officer. In other words, it allows increases in county office forces and changes in salaries without waiting upon a session of the State Legislature. There has been no argument filed against this measure as it is recognized the present law works a hardship on growing communities.

Number 17 would correct an error or oversight in the Constitution and enable the State Railroad Commission to exercise the right of eminent domain in behalf of irrigation districts, "or any other public corporation or district." Vote Yes.

COOLIDGE DRIFT GROWS.

Increased momentum in the movement toward Coolidge in California and the Nation is disclosed in this week's totals in the Literary Digest straw vote. The showing is overwhelmingly Coolidge. Discounting his figures one third and allowing the full totals of the other candidates the President, on this tabulation, would carry enough states to secure a majority in the electoral college.

The Digest has now counted 2,300,184 ballots, 1,293,378 of which are for President Coolidge. La Follette is given 496,006 and Davis draws close to him with 487,782. Coolidge has more than La Follette, Davis and all the minor tickets combined. La Follette leads in one State only, Wisconsin, and has dropped farther behind in North and South Dakota, Minnesota and Iowa, all of which he has claimed.

The more than two million voters who responded in the straw vote indicate how they cast their ballots four years ago. Heretofore the returns in this ballot have shown that Coolidge was receiving slightly less than Harding did in 1920. This week's returns show that a larger number of the 2,300,484 voters will vote for Coolidge this year than voted for Harding; that fewer will vote for Davis than voted for Cox; and that La Follette has taken his strength from the Democrats and from those who signified that they did not vote at all in 1920.

Four years ago the Digest straw vote indicated the election of Harding. This year's ballot is larger and more representative. One may make the widest sort of allowances and concede to La Follette or Davis every State which appears close and still Coolidge will have the lead. The strong movement toward Coolidge, evidenced here and everywhere in the past few weeks, is being reflected in the newest totals in the Digest in a way to indicate that the President's popular majority will be larger than the 7,000,000 given Harding.

A despatch says that Mr. McAdoo has the politicians guessing because of his letter which they translate as damning Candidate Davis with faint praise and boosting Candidate La Follette with inlsome reference. Of course it is to be remembered that Candidate Davis won a nomination with scarcely an effort that Mr. McAdoo made many weary days' struggle for and then failed to land. Perhaps that shouldn't make a difference, but there are some who are likely to conclude it does.

In the news is an account of the death of a Yosemite Indian who is represented to have attained the age of 120 years. There is no desire to question the age of aborigines who are reported to have lived abnormally long lives, but it may be realized that there are not likely to be authentic records to substantiate such longevity. And we know how legend expands the original story or record.

The adjacent news items which mention William Wrigley and his important enterprises, and the marriage to a polo player of Mrs. Fleischmann, with her alimony of five millions, are reminders of two somewhat humble agencies that have produced great fortunes—chewing gum and yeast.

THREE HUNDRED YEARS HENCE.

In the year 2224 the population of the earth will be eight billion, more or less, or five times its present population. When that figure is reached there will be a precise balance between population and the earth's ability to feed it. The next baby born, unless there is a death at the same moment to make room for it, will either have to starve or force some other individual to do so. The extreme limit of productivity will have been reached and consequently the population will have to remain stationary from then on.

This is the state of affairs predicted by Professor Albert Penck, noted German geologist and formerly an exchange professor in America. To reach his conclusions he assumes that the population will grow in the same ratio in the next three hundred years as during the past century and that there is a definite limit to the capacity of the earth to produce the means of subsistence for human life. This definite limit he assumes to have ascertained from an exhaustive study of the flora and fauna of the earth to which he applies his idea of what proper cultivation should be.

It is a further conclusion of the professor's that such a degree of exhaustion will have been reached by that time in the world's coal and iron supplies that transportation will be much more difficult. In consequence the bulk of the population will be living in the tropics, where the greater portion of the food will be produced. The limit of the United States population, for example, he places at six hundred million, while Brazil with only a slightly larger land area will contain twice that number.

All of which seems to be among those things properly classified as "important if true." Giving all possible weight of importance to the scholarly attainments of Professor Penck and to the exhaustive nature of his research there are still too many ifs upon which his conclusions rest to make them sound convincing. They become in their last analysis merely interesting speculation.

These conclusions do, however, serve the purpose of calling attention to the steady increase of the swarming millions each year calling for food. They suggest that instead of studying methods of curbing production it is a mere matter of friendliness to posterity to learn how to make production hump.—Omaha World-Herald.

THE CONNING TOWER

TO A FIRST LOVE

I could sing sonnets to your languid eyes,
And match them with the stars in brilliancy,
I'd make fair poems of your lovely hands,
But what would all comparing do for me?

My heart is like a gourd that broken once,
Ne'er more returns to sip the cooling well,
Though all my footsteps lead on thorny paths,
And my poor soul is shrived in hottest hell.

I love you still, and by the gods above,
I'll sing you only of my longing love,
Of strange new lands of sand and fantasy,
Of tumbling river streams and drifting clouds
I'll sing a song to you of you and me,

And when the singing and the singer still
A strange new beat will come into your heart,
I'll wait for you forever and a day
In Elysee where no loves lead apart

And when the trumpet herald from afar
Shall then descry your coming and give blast,
Our souls shall weld and live forever on
In peaceful valleys, satisfied at last.

THE DISAGREEABLE TASK.

Is the task you have unpleasant?
Do you hate it through and through?
Not at all the sort of duty
Which delights you with its beauty?
Not the thing you like to do?
Then your character will tell
If you'll try to do it well

Any man will gladly labor,
At the task which gives him joy,
Finding happiness and pleasure
He will even spend his leisure
At a bit of work, my boy
But life has a sterner test
Does the mean task get your best?

There are disagreeable duties
Every man is called to do,
Tasks which bring no thrill of pleasure,
But they get his size and measure
Does he stand and see them through?
Does he honest effort bring
To the hateful irksome thing?

When the hateful task and ugly
Is your duty, do not shirk
Just remember for the present
If all forms of toil were pleasant
We should never learn to work
This a real man's worth will tell
He does ugly service well

WHY NOT TAKE IT UP WITH PROFESSOR?

Editor of The Tribune:

I notice in your issue of October 22nd that you give prominence to an old, worn-out joke. I refer to that ancient, but not honorable, joke regarding the age of Methuselah You attribute this joke to a college professor in the form of a statement that Methuselah was only 80 years old when he died That the people of his day counted time in periods or cycles and that these periods corresponded nearly to the phase of the moon, and that instead of being 969 years old he would only be one-twelfth of that or a little over eighty years old I cannot believe that any college professor would make any such statement as true, for just a little thought will show how absurd such a statement is.

In the same chapter in Genesis in which is the statement of the age of Methuselah at the time of his death is a statement of the age of many of his ancestors at the time of their death, and not only that but a statement of the age of these ancestors when their first son was born Now all I have to say is that if the above "joke" is true, then Methuselah's father was a lusty young man of FIVE YEARS AND FIVE MONTHS old when Methuselah was born. He must have been a wonder.

If we will look this chapter over a little and apply this statement, which is attributed to the college professor we will find the following:

That Adam was 10 years and 10 months old when his THIRD (not first son (Seth) was born. Adam must have been a wonder also. Seth was 9 years 9 months old when Enos was born; Enos was 7 years and 6 months old when Cainan was born; Cainan was 6 years and 10 months old when Mahalaleel was born; Mahalaleel was 5 years and 5 months old when Jared was born, Jared was 13 years and 6 months old when Enoch was born, Enoch was 5 years 5 months old when Methuselah was born, and Methuselah was an old man of a little over 15 years when his son was born

F. H. DUNNINGTON

DISPUTES PROFESSOR AS TO BIBLICAL AGES.

Editor of The Tribune:

On the first page of last night's paper you have a prominently displayed article from a professor of our local university In it the savant advances the theory that the age of Methuselah of Bible fame was not actually 969 years as indicated in the Book of Genesis but rather 969 months or about 80 years In other words, he declares that literal years are not meant but rather cycles of about a month each.

A fleeting glance at the record in Genesis is sufficient to make the professor's theory appear ridiculous

'And Adam lived an hundred and thirty years and begat—Seth" Gen 5 3

If the years mentioned in the Book of Genesis are to be resolved into months, as this student declares, then Adam had a child at the rather immature age of eleven

"And Seth lived an hundred and five years and begat Enos" Gen 5 6

In other words, and according to our Berkeley scientist, Seth had a son at the age of nine!

"And Enoch lived sixty-five years and begat Methuselah" Gen 5 21 If the learned doctor's ideas be true, Enoch had a child at the rather tender age of five!

The Bible is a marvelous book which contains a Plan and Purpose supremely grand and reasonable and it does not need the higher critics to attempt to interpret it

GETTING AS PUZZLING AS "HOW OLD IS ANN?"

Editor of The Tribune:

If Methuselah was only 80 years old at death, how old was his father when Methuselah was born?

Quoting from Genesis 5th Chap., 21st verse "And Enoch lived sixty and five years and begat Methuselah

According to Prof Crawford's reasoning, Methuselah's father was less than 5½ years old when Methuselah was born. Maybe he had two or three daughters before Methuselah was born

That is the house presented to U. S Grant by a Philadelphia committee of which George H. Stuart was chairman.

Grant was so pleased that the tears came in his eyes He wrote a touching letter of acceptance His family occupied the house for some time after the Civil war, but Grant's preoccupations prevented his personal enjoyment of the gift. FLIERS ASK CITY TO AID AIR PROGRAM

Men Who Girdled Globe by Air Greeted by Eastbay, Tell Army's Need of Support in Extending Flying.

Five quiet, retiring, embarrassed young men, as uncomfortable as 12-year-olds about to receive diplomas, entered the dining hall of the Hotel Oakland and 500 persons, representing as many hundred thousands, went wild with glee.

In single file the five were led with pomp, circumstance and agitation by dozens of dignitaries to whom crossing San Francisco bay in the fog is a matter of exceptional adventure, and the crowd ceased its cheering and burst into a rollicking rendition of the national anthem.

The same quintet acquired school girl blushes later in the day when they were made the unwilling subjects of glowing tributes phrased in the well-rounded periods of the professional orator, pointed to with pride as the men who have made history.

For the five in question were those who took their lives in their hands with a careless gesture and proceeded to demonstrate to the world at large that the matter of establishing a new avenue of communication between nations, of encircling the globe in fragile airplanes was nothing in their young lives.

FLIERS GIVEN GREETING.

The occasion was the official greeting of a grateful Oakland to those men whose names are household words where ever the printed word is read—Lieutenant Lowell Smith, commander of the round-the-world flight; Lieutenant Erik Nelson who designed the motor with which the flight was made; and Lieutenants Leigh Wade, Leslie Arnold and Jack Hardy. Lieutenand Henry Ogden was unable to attend because of illness.

The ceremonies were limited to brief addresses of welcome by civic officials and a short explanation of the significance of the world flight by Major George H. Peabody in charge of R. O. T. C. aviation at the University of California.

And then the crowd inhaled deeply and proceeded to shout anew, for the chairman, Fred B. Mellman, representing the American Legion under whose auspices the affair was held, was engaged in introducing Lieutenant Smith who, while he may have appreciated the honor, looked as if he would have given a $10 hat to be home and away from the throng.

"This looks to me like a mayors' convention," began the man who has scoffed at death and openly laughed at danger. "I am not going to say much. My best speeches are my short ones. Like the air force.

fliers.

SUPPORT OF SERVICE ASKED.

"There are several things I'd like to talk about, but I will ask you to get behind the air movement. You can start with little things. This is a fine big progressive city, but the only way an aviator with a big plane could come here would be by boat or train. You should have a landing field in Oakland.

"Our air forces now are the smallest in the world, comparatively. We are just a little ahead of countries like Mexico and if we don't watch out even Mexico will outstrip the home of aircraft."

Lieutenant Smith then paid tribute to the genius of Lieutenant Nelson who designed the motor that circled the globe and turned the orator's chair to Lieutenant Arnold for the recital of some of the fliers' amusing experiences.

"In the Aleutian Islands we found an Indian chief who had some chickens. We were cooking our own at the time and chickens looked mighty good, but the chief was firm in his refusal. Finally he let us have some because something went wrong with the magneto on his motor boat and we fixed it. I can't imagine who tampered with it."

CHAPTER 6.

Fifty dollars! Vivie's eyes DID dance. But only for a moment. How could Jenny possibly save up fifty dollars in six weeks' time even by going without lunch and walking home from work? Impossible. It couldn't be done and keep the family supplied with the necessities of life also.

Jenny was sick. Perhaps a little delirious. Nevertheless Vivie came over and almost stealthily picked up the bag from the floor. She opened it. Delved into the little side pocket and almost breathlessly drew forth—a little roll of bills! Her eyes WERE stars. They almost danced out of her head at the discovery. She began to unroll the money, to hurriedly count it. "Five, fifteen—twenty, thirty, forty—fifty!" Fifty dollars! She fingered it lovingly. She eyed it like a greedy little rat.

"Look, Ma!" she exlaimed joyously. "It IS here. Fifty dollars. I've counted it. Now I can start to business college. Lota Leese won't hold her nose so high now because SHE is starting next week. I can start, too. Oh, Jen, you are the bestest, sweetest, dearest, old sis in all the world!"

She turned and started toward the still burden in the Captain's arms, to throw her own around it, to touch the lips lightly, to caress the work worn thin body. But the Captain was scowling beneath his shaggy, beetling brows. He had watched the entire performance. Saw Vivie pick up the bag, dive into it hungrily, with avaricious shining eyes—saw her tremble in delight as she counted the money, and it filled him with a disgust that he could not conceal, even from the girl's mother. His attitude was almost menacing as he stormed out.

"Barnacle! That's what you be, my lass. A barnacle clinging to this frail ship, a-sucking every bit o' blood and life out o' it. I've seen it coming every day since I came here. I knew that it wouldn't be long before this poor little thing would come limping into port, about ready to go down. And she DID go down tonight. And I'm thinking that it's because she has been going without enough to eat to save up that money, to squander on the likes o' you! Scuttle away with you! Now ain't no time to be fawnin' over her. She can't see your pretty, empty face or hear your blarney!"

Both Vivie and her mother stood aghast. It was probably the first time in all her life that the conceit of Vivie had received a puncture. She grudgingly admitted that the Captain had never shown by any outward sign that he was at all overwhelmed by her charms, but she felt that in his heart he must have realized their potency. And he had pricked this conceit. Stormed at her! Called her a barnacle!

A barnacle—ugh! That was a tenacious, ugly little creature that drew its victims in and held them and sucked the life and substance from them. She had seen the piles beneath the wharves literally covwith them, and the greedy things in time even ate into the wood and destroyed it. There was nothing pretty about them. Even their shelly cases were dirt colored and ugly, not like the pearly shells of the little creatures that lived in the deep, green clean places of the ocean. A bacnacle, eh? Ugh! Oh, how she hated Old Shellback for that insult. Would her mother order him out of the house at once for it? She whimpered and waited.

Perhaps the first natural impulse of Mrs. McCaskie was to resent the insult flung at her darling. But it was also her child, her flesh and blood, so beaten and still that the Captain was hugging to his great breast. And Jenny had not moved since she fluttered feebly like a moth caught in a wind storm, and lay still. For once the darling of the McCaskies did not come first. But it was only a matter of life and death that checked the impulse. Mrs. McCaskie just turned to Vivie and said:

"Go telephone for a doctor, Vivie. I guess Jen is about done for."

Only that. Nothing more. Not one word in her defense. Not the least show of resentment. Old Shellback had got away with it! Had actually stormed at her and insulted her and got away with it!

It was unbelievable. Jenny would never had stood for it, you bet. Good old Jen! She would have made him apologize. She would have insisted that he leave the house for insulting her.

Vivie felt hot and angry inside. She was a smouldering volcano about to spit lava. She had been in a smouldering state since she had been forced to give up her room to this sea smelly, rough old man who had paid no attention to her since his arrival and only did so now to insult her.

In her own home, too! Hah, that was GOOD! She had no home. She was sick of living in a dirty rat hole. She would get out of it if only for this one night. She WOULD go to the Eden. Let any one try to stop her. But she would be clever. She would give no hint of her intentions. She would just go, thats' all. No insults at the Eden. Just jazzy music and life and living, and a dozen pale faced, thin chested youths hanging about her all the time like flies swarming about a pot of honey. They always did. Ah, she was appreciated at the Eden. Some one was always telling her how lovely she was there. And she'd go, you bet, dive or no dive. This was her chance to sneak out. She would telephone for the doctor, of course, and then go on over to Lota's house to fix her complexion before Lota's vanity with its intriguing three mirrors. She looked better in her yellow sweater and black velvet tam than she did in the pink crepe de chine anyway. Her hair shone like spun gold against the black velvet. She knew it was ravishingly lovely against black velvet. She had been told so by every boy she knew.

"Corn beef and cabbage! Ugh! Don't you EVER cook anything else on Saturday? I HATE the stuff! It sickens me. That infernal mess would tie kinks in the digestive apparatus of an ostrich!" The classic features of Willie McCaskie were distorted with repugnance.

She went over and picked the tam up and topped the tumbling glory that was her hair with it. She replaced the money in the bag and flung the bag down on the floor again. With head held high, setting every curl a-dance, she flounced out of the room. Her mother fluttered after she called after the flying golden figure, "Phone Dr. Blackfort, honey, and tell him to come at once."

"That old pill box!" came back down the hall. "Why, that's the old quack that crippled your hand. But what you say goes. My wishes are not considered in this family any more. As soon as Willie left Old Shellback showed up to boss me a round. And HE is getting away with—murder!"

With this parting thrust Vivie went tumbling down the front steps, a little flurry of outrage, anger and humiliation.

Mrs. McCaskie came back. Her face was drawn and gaunt with misery. It was like putting a knife into her heart when Vivie stabbed her with her temper and reproaches. But motherlike, she always made allowances. She made them now.

Poor Vivie! It HAD been a little tragic when she had been forced to give up her room to a garrulous old man, a stranger, a usurper. How could they expect her to be very gracious to him? She must resent the fact that this little bit of something of her own to take an interest in had been taken from her. And she HAD taken such an interest in it, too. The cheap little trinkets that she bought for dresser and walls attested to that fact. It had been a sort of oasis in the desert to her. The sordidness of the McCaskie flat was hardly conducive to a sweet temper, and she had been driven out of the one sunshiny corner of it. Poor child! She was too young to actually realize that only the direst of necessity could have done it. That only fear of offending their well-to-do roomer and driving him away made them humble before him, even in the face of insults. But Mrs. McCaskie did show her resentment a little when she spoke. She spoke sharply, and impersonally, making it very plain that she was concerned only in the white burden he held in his arms.

"Bring her into the diningroom," she ordered. "I will get her to bed at once. The doctor will be here soon."

The captain carried Jenny in and laid her gently down on the wide couch. But he did not leave immediately. He hovered around, awkwardly trying to be of some help. He lit the kerosene heater and stood it near the couch. He lifted one of Jenny's hands and began to chafe it again. He held it near the heater to warm it. The yellow glow that emanated from the heater seemed to actually shine through that thin, transparent hand. The bones, like slender wires, seemed scarcely adequate to hold the frail flesh together.

"Not enough meat on her to feed a sparrow," muttered the captain.

Mrs. McCaskie bustled around, carrying blankets to the kitchen to warm them in front of the oven. She brought a hot water bottle and stood expectantly, waiting for the captain to take the hint to leave the room so that she could undress Jenny and tuck her snugly under the warmed blankets. Finally almost impatiently she had to tell him to go. But he took no offense. Apologized humbly for being such an old fool and lumbered out into the kitchen again. He sat there until the doctor came. He was sitting there when the doctor came into the kitchen for a glass and some water.

"Is the little one very sick, Doc?" he asked, his voice sort of muffled like. "Is there any danger o' her not coming out o' it all right?"

The doctor was a cheery, rotund little man, with cheery eyes that seemed to dance. He might be a quack, as Vivie had hinted, but you knew instinctively that he always did his best, and that if he failed sometimes in the desired results it was not because he had not made a heroic effort to save either life or limb.

"Malnutrition," he answered, bustling around the kitchen like a fussy little old lady, washing and drying a glass until it shone with sparkling brilliance. "Malnutrition, my friend. Nothing more or less. The right diet and plenty of rest is all that is needed to pull the little lady through." He whipped a spoon under the faucet, let the hot water run on it a few seconds, whipped it through the folds of a dish towel and polished it as he had done the glass, dropped it in the glass with a merry tinkle, held both up to the light and looked through them. "Malnutrition," he repeated for the last time. "An extreme case of malnutrition." And he bustled out of the kitchen again, leaving the captain as much in the dark as if he had not answered his question.

Malnutrition! The new-fangled word meant little to the captain. Had he used the plain old-fashioned word "starvation" the captain would have understood. Shaking his head at the seriousness of the plague that had stricken down the snow-white gun, he got up and lumbered off to his own part of the house.

A second later a loud crash resounded through the entire house. It came from the direction of the kitchen and sounded as if all bedlam had broken loose. It dragged the captain to his feet and he went hurrying back to the kitchen to learn what had happened. He almost bumped into Mrs. McCaskie hurrying from the dining room.

Bang! Rattle, crash—bang! An earthquake surely. But earthquakes do not curse, and this racket was followed by some of the choicest profanity the captain had ever heard. He could do no better himself. And then the back door opened and in its enclosure stood a willowy young man with a cigarette hanging loosely to his underlip. With a bright bordered pongee handkerchief he was wiping some dirt—flecking it gracefully rather—from his trouser leg. The trousers were generously soiled with what looked like the remains of a six course dinner.

The willowy, but just now disheveled gentleman was no other than Willie McCaskie, returned after six weeks' absence, to the bosom of his family, and for reasons of his own he had chosen this back and inconspicuous route home. But his entrance had been a failure.

"D—— that filthy garbage can!" he cried, flecking a tenacious bit of wilted lettuce from his knee. "Why isn't it down at the foot of the steps where it belongs? I nearly broke my neck on the infernal thing. And believe me it's in the—alley now. I kicked it so far that I'll never fall over THAT can again."

He came into the room, gracefully as he could under the circumstances. But his mother just stared at him—stared stupidly a few moments. One thought flashed through her brain. He was out on a job again! And at such a time. What with Jenny taken down sick and Vivie in a defiant mood, it was almost too much to have him bob up.

"Well," smiled Willie airily, "how goes ever' little thing?"

The presence of the captain puzzled him. Who on earth was this old codger? Why didn't his mother speak and give him a knock-down to the old bird? What was his mother staring at anyway? She didn't act as if she was very glad to see him. When Mrs. McCaskie spoke she said but one word, but it was expressive.

"Well!" she folded her arms and compressed her lips and looked her son and heir sternly in the eye. "Well!"

"Well—what?"

Willie sniffed a little. A familiar odor assailed his nostrils. An odor that he was very sensitive to. One that his delicate stomach rebelled against. He sauntered over to the range. Ah, how well he knew that huge black kettle! How often had he seen that homey kitchen utensil—every Saturday in fact since he could remember. He lifted the lid, with an elegant gesture. He sniffed again—with some repugnance. He gazed down at the yellow, sodden mass of vegetable beneath the huge hunk of meat. Then he turned his classic countenance again toward his mother, with such a look of disgust that even the lowly eatables in the big black kettle must have cringed and slunk against its black sides.

"Corned beef and cabbage!" he gasped. "My God, ma—don't you ever cook anything else around here on Saturday? You know my stomach is delicate. I can't abide the stuff. It sickens me-ugh! That mess would tie kinks in the digestive apparatus of an ostrich."

And then Mrs. McCaskie exploded. She could contain her just indignation no longer.

"What are you doing back here?" she asked with bitterness. "Did you get fired?"

"Fired! The idea. No, I quit!" Willie was nonchalant. He hoped his mother would not pull any fireworks in front of this old geezer. And who was the old geezer anyway?

"Quit!" Mrs. McCaskie could scarcely believe her ears.

"Yes, I quit. There was nothing up there but a lotta bums and I won't work along side of a gang of vags for no man's money."

"You quit! And Jen aworking herself to skin and bones trying to make both ends meet. You quit! And you being out of work all summer. What right had you to quit and come home to eat up what little we can get in the house? After Jen paid $6 for the job, too. Do you know that $6 means nearly a half a week of slavin' for Jen?——"

"Well, what the——" sputtered Willie.

"Quit! Oh, it is all very well for you to get so tony that you won't work along side of honest laborers! It's all right for you to keep your lily white hands soft and unrolled. You are too good to work, but your poor little sister can slave until she drops in her tracks, and that is just what she has done, Willie McCaskie. She's layin' in there now, too weak to hold up her head and the doctor is with her, and when Jen lays down on the job, we all starve. Eh, what? We'll all starve. We can expect no help from you, my fine tony son! All that you want to do is slide through life on a free pass with a fancy cigarette hanging to your lip. Quit! Oh, my Gawd—and the wolf sticking his nose in the door now!"

Willie was dumfounded. Never before had his mother, had any one turned on him like this. His lips fell apart. The cigarette fell from them.

"Say, this is a h— of a reception to give a guy!" he gasped.

BERKELEY'S SCHOOL FIRE UNDER PROBE

Blaze in Franklin Building Not Believed of Incendiary Origin Although Suspicion Aroused by Oil-Soaked Rag

BERKELEY, Oct. 25.—Almost exactly one week after the El Cerrito school, two miles away, had been destroyed by a blaze of incendiary origin, Berkeley police and fire authorities are today investigating a fire which did $100 damage last night to the Franklin school, San Pablo avenue and Virginia street.

Following an investigation last night and this morning, Fire Chief G. Sydney Rose and Inspector A. R. Mehrtens of the police department declared that in their opinion the blaze was not incendiary. Further investigation is being made centering about a small can of material which is declared to have started the blaze.

The fire had its origin in a box of clean waste in the manual training room, located in a separate building 60 feet from the main school structure. According to the probe of the authorities, oil-soaked rags were probably thrown into the comparatively clean waste, causing spontaneous combustion. As firemen entered the manual training plant they declared there was a strong smell of turpentine, but this may be accounted for, they say, by the fact this explosive is used in work at the school plant.

Discovery of the blaze was made by school guards placed there following the El Cerrito fire and by neighbors who had climbed into the building through windows and were attacking the fire with patent extinguishers when the fire department arrived.

The fire was discovered about 9:30 o'clock last night, and when the fire department arrived on the scene the blaze was creeping up a side wall of the manual training building. The wall was burned upwards for a distance of about eight feet when the blaze was extinguished.

The Franklin school, one of Berkeley's oldest educational structures, is a three-story frame structure used for elementary grades.

Groom Captures Burglar During Wedding Feast

Guests Given Thrill as Thief Is Taken After Locking Visitor in Bedroom.

One hundred guests at a reception following the wedding of M. W. Park and Miss Francis Hatch were given a thrill when the bridegroom introduced a burglar he had captured in a store room in the home of Mr. and Mrs. George Hatch, 265 Park View Terrace, the bride's parents.

The capture of the burglar was thrill No. 2. Thrill No. 1 occurred when Mrs. A. W. Bingwell of Los Angeles discovered that she had been locked in one of the bedrooms. Park went to get a ladder and discovered the burglar in the store room. The stranger attempted to make his escape, but Park grabbed him and forced him into the house. George Hatch, who is the president of the Board of Education, telephoned to the police. In the meantime Mrs. Bingwell was [illegible] prison by some one who found the key.

At the police station the would-be burglar told the police that his name was Edward Jacobson. He said that he has been residing in the Raymond Hotel, San Francisco. He is being held for investigation. While the wedding ceremony was being performed at St. Paul's Episcopal church a burglar entered the home of E. E. Burquist at 2315 Harrison boulevard. Mrs. Burquist was watching the bridal party and the guests go into the church while the burglar was at work in her home. When she returned home she found the burglar in her bedroom. She screamed and the thief jumped out the window, leaving a large quantity of silverware and Jewelry behind him on the dresser. She discovered that the only thing missing was a small purse which contained $1.25.

TRIAL BARES DYING NOTES OF SAILORS

Mother of Victim of Wartime Sinking Sues for $100,000, Charging Lost Craft Was "Rotten Hulk"

BY ASSOCIATED PRESS
LEASED WIRE TO TRIBUNE

NEW YORK, Oct. 25.—Messages found in a bottle cast upon the Orkney Islands seven years ago have been admitted in evidence at the trial of a $100,000 suit brought against Charles W. Morse and others by Mrs. Adelaide G. Nelson of Philadelphia. Her son, Lawrence, with 29 other sailors, went down with the steamship Frederick and a cargo of war munitions in January, 1917.

Altogather there were ten messages in the bottle. The only two offered in evidence—one written in English and one in Spanish—were admitted by Federal Judge Goddard over the protests of counsel for Morse.

Attorneys for Mrs. Nelson sought to show through the testimony of witnesses and the corroborative testimony of the bottled notes that the Frederick was a rotten hulk when she put to sea, and that her sinking was due to unseaworthiness and not, as the defense maintained, to a German submarine or floating mine.

Captain J. G. Toby, a ship surveyor, testified that on one occasion, when he hammered against the Frederick's steel plates to test their strength, the hammer broke through. He declared the ship was unseaworthy.

CHURCH and FRATERNAL NEWS

New Temple Church Hall Is Finished

Charles Eugene Rose, minister at Oakland Temple church, Thirteenth and Market streets, has announced the completion of the new auditorium addition to the main church assembly hall. Tomorrow will be the dedication time, not only for the new addition to the building, but to acknowledge the one hundred or more new members taken into the church during the past few months. Oakland Temple church has twice doubled its attendance and membership in the past year, and the congregations now are forcing capacity space to properly seat and entertain the strangers who come to worship.

The Sunday services will be called "One Hundred Percent Services," and every department of the church body will rise to the fullest strength on that day. Considerable expense has been met in the remodeling of the church building to admit added auditorium space, so that two hundred or more persons may be accommodated than heretofore.

During the coming week evangelistic services will be conducted at Oakland Temple church, with Mrs. Eleanor Mae Frey as the principal speaker. Mrs. Frey has recently returned to this country from Jerusalem and other foreign posts and is able to give interesting accounts of her travels and of the customs of the Old World today. Special singing and musical numbers will be in charge of Gilbert Hoff, tenor soloist.

Dr. Ross has established a pastor's study and office on the second floor of the church building where he receives callers and attends the usual service to people requiring spiritual help or counsel.

SUN AND THE SON TO BE SUBJECT OF PASTOR'S TALK

"Some man, soon, will pick up the golden key to the law of energy, and harnessing the unlimited power of the sun, will hitch it to the wheels of the world, and that generation will smile at their forefathers who were so antiquated that they had to depend on such make-shifts as coal, oil and water to move the wheels of their day," says Rev. D M Dawson of the Melrose Baptist church, who tomorrow night speaks on "The Sun and the Son."

"The sun," he says, "is the source of all life on earth, and the vast coal deposits from which we draw heat, power and light, are only solar energy of past centuries stored up compactly preserved for man's use. When you 'step on the gas' you just appropriate energy that was released by the sun centuries ago, and was hidden in the vaults of the earth for the generations that were to follow. These are but the drippings that this giant has left in his train; but his real gifts to the world are still in his grasp."

Experiences in Africa to Be Told

Madame French Sheldon will speak tomorrow night at the Fifteenth Street A. M. E. church. She has penetrated the heart of Africa at the head of her own caravan of native negroes, thus gaining valuable knowledge of the continent and its people. On Monday evening she will speak to the colored citizens of Oakland, Alameda and Berkeley at Alcatraz hall, 717 Peralta street, on the subject, "Her Thrilling Experiences in Darkest Africa."

A THOUGHT FOR TODAY
By the Rev. Kenneth Owens.

"Six days shalt thou labor and do all thy work."—Exodus 20-9.

Six days for labor is enough,
The seventh day for rest,
To lay aside our many tools
And be His holy guest.

Come to His home and bend the knee,
For once He sacrificed,
To save the world for all of time
His only Son, the Christ!

N. Y. WOMAN SUES SAUSALITO AUTHOR OVER ROYALTIES

Writer of "White Shadows of South Seas" to Fight Attempt to Share Profits.

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 25.—"White Shadows of the South Seas," the book that brought fame and fortune to Frederick O'Brien of Sausalito, promises to have a sequel growing out of a law action by Rose Wilder Lane that might bear the title "Dusky Shadows of the Past."

According to dispatches from New York, Mrs. Lane has sued O'Brien for an accounting of his profits from the book, saying he had agreed to pay her a third of the royalties for rewriting it.

O'Brien contends that Mrs. Lane's work had been merely that of a copyist, not an editor, and that she already had been overpaid for it.

Mrs. Lane said O'Brien had turned over his manuscript to her in 1919 and that they had discussed its publication with the Century company. "They agreed to take it if I would rewrite it," she declared. Furthermore, the original manuscript with a contract in which she alleged O'Brien agreed to pay her a third of the royalties was kept in a deposit box in New York, she said, but a friend turned the box over to O'Brien while she was ill, and O'Brien had admitted before witnesses that he had destroyed the "other papers" that were in it.

O'Brien has denounced the suit as unjust, and announced that he would fight it vigorously. Mrs. Lane had been engaged to select from a great mass of material he had written a portion suitable to the theme he had in mind, he said, and for this she had been paid an agreed sum by the publisher.

S. F. PROSECUTOR IGNORES CHARGE IN LIQUOR TANGLE

Layne Only Captain to Complain of Laxity, Says Brady.

SCAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 25.—District Attorney Mathew Brady expected today to retaliate to the charge of Captain of Police Arthur Layne, that he was a friend of bootleggers and a frequenter of their resorts, entered upon an era of silence.

Brady contented himself with pointing out that there are a dozen other captains of police in the city and that Layne so far is the only one to complain of being unable to obtain search warrants and receive cooperation from the district attorney.

Three alleged members of the Eddie Marron booze ring appeared today in the Federal court. Sergeant Joseph Gorham and Patrolman Frick Kissane of the Bush street station, charged with accepting bribes and conspiracy to violate the prohibition laws, and Walter Brandt, alleged partner of Marron, were before U. S. Judge John Partridge. All pleaded not guilty and their cases were continued to November 11.

Twenty-two bootleggers at the Federal building today sought to appear before Judge Frank Kerrigan who, it was reported, would hold an hour's session before sailing at noon on the Steamship Kroonland to New York. Alleged bootleggers to the number of 22 were ready to plead guilty.

They found Judge Partridge was calling Judge Kerrigan's calendar and pleaded not guilty.

Land Is Purchased For New Theater

The purchase of land and the proposed building of a $1,000,000 theater at Grand avenue and Santa Clara is announced by A. M. Bowles, general manager of the West Coast Theaters, Inc., of Northern California.

The new playhouse will be under the direction of a corporation known as the East Bay Theaters, Inc., which was formed yesterday in order to complete the deal, Bowles said. Bowles was named as secretary and treasurer. Others prominent in the corporation are A. L. Kalmsky and Abe Karsky.

A. L. Gore of Los Angeles, secretary and treasurer of the West Coast Theaters organization, consummated the deal, which was handled for the showman by Jacob Samuels, San Francisco attorney.

The name for the new picture palace has not yet been decided. Reed Brothers, architects, are in charge of construction, which will begin immediately, it is said. The theater will seat 2000.

Woman Auto Crash Heroine Improving

SAN BERNARDINO, Oct. 25.—Improvement was reported today in the condition of Mrs. T. G Kelty, who slashed her wrists to get blood which she fed to her little niece to keep her from dying.

She is suffering from shock and exposure, which followed the automobile accident of last Sunday in which her husband was killed when their machine plunged down the mountainside. For two days and three nights, Mrs. Kelty and her niece, Meredith Waterbury, lay in the canyon awaiting rescue.

The city, stirred by the woman's sacrifice, is praying for her recovery. Churches will unite tomorrow in a prayer that she may be spared.

LEGAL NOTICE.

ORDINANCE NO 8.

AN ORDINANCE ORDERING, CALLING AND PROVIDING FOR, AND GIVING NOTICE OF, AN ELECTION TO BE HELD IN THE EAST BAY MUNICIPAL UTILITY DISTRICT, STATE OF CALIFORNIA, ON TUESDAY, NOVEMBER 4, 1924, FOR THE PURPOSE OF SUBMITTING TO THE QUALIFIED ELECTORS OF SAID DISTRICT THE PROPOSITION OF INCURRING A BONDED DEBT BY SAID DISTRICT FOR THE CONSTRUCTION, COMPLETION AND ACQUISITION BY SAID DISTRICT OF A SOURCE OF WATER SUPPLY FROM THE MOKELUMNE RIVER AND OTHER PROPERTIES TO BE USED BY SAID DISTRICT FOR ACQUIRING AND IMPOUNDING WATER FOR SAID DISTRICT AND CONVEYING THE SAME THERETO.

WHEREAS, by resolution of the Board of Directors of East Bay Municipal Utility District, adopted on the 8th day of April, 1924, said Board determined and declared that the public interest and necessity of said district demand that said district acquire by condemnation proceedings, or otherwise, all of the water, properties and rights of the East Bay Water Company which are used or useful in the public service for supplying water for public and private uses within said district, except the water system at the Town of Newark;

AND WHEREAS, by resolution of said Board of Directors adopted on the 21st day of August, 1924, said Board determined and declared that, in order to acquire and complete an adequate and satisfactory system of water supply for said district, it is necessary and advisable that said district also acquire a source or sources of water supply and other properties to be used by said district for acquiring and impounding water for said district and conveying the same thereto;

AND WHEREAS, a petition signed by electors of said district equal in number to fifteen per centum of all the votes cast within the territory of said district at the last preceding general election held for the election of state and county officers in said district, has been filed with the Board of Directors of said district asking that said district construct, complete or acquire, in accordance with said resolution of said Board adopted on said 21st day of August, 1924, a source or sources of water supply and other properties to be used by said district for acquiring and impounding water for said district and conveying the same thereto; and that all necessary proceedings to construct, complete or acquire said source or sources of water supply and other properties be taken by said Board, and to that end that a bond election or elections in said District for said purpose be called by said Board in accordance with law at the earliest time deemed practicable by said Board;

AND WHEREAS, said Board of Directors has procured plans and estimates of the cost of original construction and completion by said district of sources of water supply and other properties for acquiring and impounding water for said district and conveying the same thereto; and in securing estimates of the cost of original construction and completion of waterworks by said district, said Board of Directors has procured and placed on file plans and estimates of the cost of obtaining a sufficient supply of good, pure water for said district from the Mokelumne River, which source said Board of Directors by resolution adopted on the 24th day of September, 1924, did find and designate as available;

AND WHEREAS, the secretary of said district immediately upon the presentation of said petition proceeded to examine and verify the signatures thereto and did certify as the result of such examination to said Board of Directors that said petition was signed by the required number of qualified petitioners, which required number of signatures is found to be genuine, and did transmit to the president of said Board of Directors an authentic copy of said petition without the signatures thereto;

AND WHEREAS, upon receiving said petition with said certificate of said secretary, said Board of Directors did formulate for submission to the electors of said district at the election hereinafter mentioned a proposition in the form hereinafter set forth for the construction, completion or acquisition of said source of water supply and other properties for acquiring and impounding water for said district and conveying the same thereto;

AND WHEREAS, no proposition for the acquisition of the said water, properties and rights of said East Bay Water Company referred to in said resolution of said Board of Directors adopted on said 8th day of April, 1924, has as yet been formulated, or can now be formulated, owing to the fact that the valuation of said water, properties and rights by the Railroad Commission of the State of California heretofore applied for by said district has not been completed;

AND WHEREAS, the utility proposed to be so acquired by said district is a revenue producing utility, and the bonded debt proposed to be incurred therefor will not in the aggregate exceed twenty (20) per cent. of the assessed value of all the real and personal property of said district;

NOW, THEREFORE, BE IT ENACTED by the Board of Directors of the East Bay Municipal Utility District, as follows:

Section 1. An election is hereby called and ordered to be held in said East Bay Municipal Utility District, on TUESDAY, NOVEMBER 4, 1924, for the purpose of submitting to the qualified electors of said district the proposition of incurring a bonded debt by said district for the construction, completion and acquisition by said district of a source of water supply from the Mokelumne River and other properties and facilities to be used by said district for acquiring and impounding water for said district and conveying the same thereto and for disposing of any surplus water thereof.

The estimated cost of the construction, completion and acquisition of said source of water supply and other properties to be used by said district for acquiring and impounding water for said district and conveying the same thereto and for disposing of any surplus water thereof is the sum of thirty-nine million (39,000,000) dollars. The amount of the principal of the bonded debt to be incurred for said purposes is likewise thirty-nine million (39,000,000) dollars, and the rate of interest to be paid thereon is five (5) per centum per annum, payable semi-annually.

Section 2. The election hereby called and ordered to be held in said district shall be held and conducted, and the votes thereat received and canvassed, and the returns thereof made, and the result thereof ascertained, determined and declared, as herein provided, and in all particulars not recited herein, according to the laws of the State of California providing for and governing bond elections in said district; provided said election shall be consolidated with the general election to be held in said district on said 4th day of November, 1924, for the election of five (5) directors for said district.

The ballots to be used at said election shall be such as may be required by law to be used thereat, and in addition to any other matter required by law to be printed on said ballots, shall appear thereon the following:

YES
NO

Sample ballots containing the matters required to be printed thereon, also a card stating the location of the precinct polling place of each elector, shall be supplied to the electors of said district, but a failure on the part of any elector to receive such sample ballot or card shall not invalidate said election or affect in any manner the legality of any bonds that may be authorized thereat.

Said Board of Directors does hereby submit to the qualified electors of said district at said election the said proposition hereinabove set forth and designates and refers to said proposition in the form of ballot hereinabove prescribed for use at said election.

Section 3. Any qualified elector of said district may vote at said election for or against the said proposition hereby submitted. To vote in favor of, and to authorize the incurring of a bonded debt for the purpose set forth in said proposition, the voter shall stamp a cross (X) in the voting square after the word "YES", printed opposite said proposition; and to vote against, and refuse to authorize the incurring of a bonded debt for the purpose set forth in said proposition, the voter shall stamp a cross (X) in the voting square after the word "NO", printed opposite said proposition.

A cross (X) stamped in the voting square after the word "YES" shall be counted as a vote in favor of said proposition, and to authorize the incurring of a bonded debt to the amount of, and for the purpose specified therein; and a cross (X) stamped in the voting square after the word "NO" shall be counted as a vote against said proposition, and a refusal to authorize the incurring of any bonded debt for the purpose specified therein.

Section 4. The precincts, polling places and officers for said election shall be the same as the precincts, polling places and officers for the general election to be held in said district on Tuesday, the 4th day of November, 1924, which general election was called by the Board of Directors of said district by Resolution No. 149 of said Board adopted on the 28th day of August, 1924, entitled, "Resolution No. 149, calling election, East Bay Municipal Utility District" and by Ordinance No. 7 of said Board adopted on the 9th day of October, 1924, entitled, "An ordinance calling a general election in East Bay Municipal Utility District to be held on Tuesday, the 4th day of November, 1924, prescribing notice of said election and directing that notice of said election be given," and by Resolution No. 168 of said Board adopted on the 4th day of October, 1924, entitled, "A Resolution calling a general election in East Bay Municipal Utility District to be held on Tuesday, the 4th day of November, 1924, prescribing the precincts and polling places for said election and designating the officers of said election," and by the notice and proclamation of said general election published pursuant to said Resolution No. 149 on the 16th and 17th days of September, 1924, in the "Oakland Tribune," a newspaper of general circulation published in the City of Oakland in said district, and by the notice and proclamation of said general election published pursuant to said Ordinance No. 7 on the 11th day of October, 1924; in the "Oakland Post-Enquirer"; and the precincts, polling places and officers for said election hereby called shall be the same as those set forth in said Resolution No. 168; reference to which said resolutions, ordinance, proclamations and notices of election, and each thereof, is hereby specifically made.

MAN, GIRL, EX-WIFE IN COURT ROW

Threats to cite Clarence S. Klinker, property man at the Oakland Orpheum, for contempt of court and to procure a warrant for his arrest on a charge of assault and battery were made today by H. C. McPike, attorney for Gertrude Klinker, his divorced wife, following an altercation between the Klinkers and Miss Mabel Murphy at the door of the courthouse yesterday afternoon.

Mrs. Klinker has a motion pending to modify a final decree of divorce. Klinkert is opposing the move.

Miss Murphy had been summoned to the afternoon session of court as a witness but Judge J. T. B. Warne, sitting in special session, was taken suddenly ill and the case was continued before her arrival. Arrangements were made for her to be instructed by Superior Judge J. S. Koford to be on hand next Friday.

Klinkert is alleged to have met her at the door of the courthouse and told her the case had gone over, urging her to accompany him back up town. Mrs. Klinger interfered at this point, telling the witness she was wanted in court. Klinker is said to have attacked his wife, twisting her arms until she screamed.

William Manning, court clerk, who emerged from the building at this time, was attracted by the cries, summoned Eddie Barrett, deputy sheriff, from the courtroom, who put a stop to the altercation and brought Miss Murphy into court.

McPik says he will charge Klinker with contempt of court and assault and battery.

STANFORD AERIAL LABORATORY SEEN BY NAVAL FLIERS

STANFORD UNIVERSITY, Oct. 25.—Seven De Haviland navy planes from the aircraft squadrons, battle fleet, San Diego, under the command of Commander Stanford N. Moses were here yesterday on a visit to the aero-dynamics laboratory in recognition of the services to the navy and aviation of Professor William Frederick Durand, emeritus, now Washington expert for the university.

The visit of the naval planes to the university was arranged following a suggestion by commander to Captain Edward L. Beach, assistant professor of naval history at Stanford. The planes were on their way to San Francisco for Naval Day exercises.

Camps were laid on the polo field near the Encina gymnasium to guide the fliers to a landing place. A committee consisting of John A. Sellards, endowment secretary, chairman, and former naval officer, President Ray Lyman Wilbur, Captain Beach, Major William D. Geary, Comptroller A. E. Roth, Professor Everett P. Lesley, and Thayer Todd, received the visitors.

The fliers were taken on a tour of the university building and grounds and were introduced to the secrets of the aero-dynamics laboratory by Professor Leslie Todd, who is a laboratory assistant and ex-army pilot.

TWO ACTORS HURT IN SHIP MOB SCENE

Hollywood Movie Supers Are Crushed Against Rail in Free-for-all Fight as Director Demands More Action

VALLEJO, Oct. 25.—George Cooper and Guyan Bennett, Hollywood actors, playing minor roles in a Famous Players-Lasky film, being taken on the bay near here, were placed under a physician's care today from the effects of injuries received when a mob scene on a bay steamer became too realistic.

The two men were crushed against the steamer Colusa's railing by 49 members of the "mob," while a movie director was shouting for "more action." They were taking part in a free-for-all fight in which four members of the cast were supposed to jump into the bay to escape vengeance at the hands of a vigilance committee.

Dr. E. Afl Peterson, attending physician, says that their injuries are not serious, but will incapacitate them for some time. Muscles and ligaments in their legs have been torn.

The injured men were in support of Willie Colher Jr., who is being starred in "The Devil's Cargo," a movie of the days of '49 in San Francisco. The steamer Colusa, chartered to take scenes off San Pablo point, duplicates a gold rush river steamer.

The "riot" in which the men were injured is supposed to be an early day historical scene at Sacramento, when a Sacramento vigilance committee attempted to prevent an influx of San Francisco gamblers and met a steamer with a lynching party.

Miss Nell Fickes, 2239 Adeline street, driver of the second car, and James Jesse, 2182 High street, received minor cuts and bruises.

Motorman G. H. McAuley, conductor on a Grove street car, was badly cut about the face and hands by flying glass when an auto driven by Clarence E. Lewis, 990 Fifty-fifth avenue, crashed into his car at Spruce street and Glenn avenue, Berkeley. McAuley was treated at the Berkeley General hospital.

Lewis, according to the police was driving up the Spruce street hill and at Glenn avenue crashed head-on with the street car in charge of McAuley and Conductor L. E. Smith. Lewis escaped injury and assumed full blame for the accident, according to the police.

Running away down a steep incline on A street, Hayward, when its brakes slipped at the top of the hill, an automobile owned by Frank Eicher, real estate man, at the corner of Grove way and East Fourteenth street, Hayward, sped across East Fourteenth street, narrowly missing a passing automobile and street car. The machine finally crashed into the plumbing shop of Ralph Reed.

Social Training Need in Schools, Dr. Kohs Asserts

Behavior Clinics' Work Is Lauded by Welfare League Speaker.

Too little attention is given to the emotional lives of children in the opinion of Dr. Samuel C. Kohs, executive director of the Oakland Jewish Federation. Dr. Kohs was the principal speaker before the educational section of the Public Welfare League of Alameda County.

"Our schools emphasize too much intelligence and physique and too little matters of social usefulness," Dr. Kohs charged.

"We should provide emotional training so as to take care of the development of moral and social qualities," he declared. "We should give social recognition to the need of curing behavior defects. A community which has made a small start, as has ours, through behavior clinics in the health centers, can make the useful work of these clinics known to the people through their clubs, churches and other organizations.

Justice should be more intelligent and less dominated by the desire to inflict pain and bring about incarceration and more directed to the development of increased capacity for well-doing in the offender, Dr. Kohs maintains. He urged that the importance of normal family life be constantly stressed.

Dr. Kohs' conclusions followed an analysis of the Leopold-Loeb case in Chicago.

Mrs. A. L. Whitman presided as chairman of the program.

Rev. Lloyd B. Thomas, rector of Trinity Episcopal church, has been elected chairman of the educational section of the Public Welfare League. Members of the committee include Frank M. Shick, Miss Louise Lisbon, Mrs. O. H. Fischer, Mrs. E. O. Schetter.

BENICIA DRIVER DIES FROM CRASH

BENICIA, Oct. 25—Gerry Arenson, 26 J street, is dead, and Edward Cardoza, a friend, is in the Vallejo general hospital in a serious condition as the result of an auto accident on the Arsenal hill road between here and Cordelia last night. Miner Silvey and George Duarte, companions of Arneson, escaped with minor injuries.

WITNESS IN AUTO DEATH TRIAL HERE

Charles Beeson Voluntarily Returns From Oregon When It Was Rumored He Would Avoid Hearing

Returning voluntarily to Oakland when word reached him that it was rumored that he had left the city rather than appear next Monday as a witness in the trial of Howard Hogan, Charles Beeson today is ready to tell what he knows of the fatal accident 1st June when Hogan is alleged to have run down and killed two men. Hogan's trial for manslaughter will be held before Judge Fred V. Wood.

Beeson appeared at the office of District Attorney Ezra Decoto late yesterday saying that he had just arrived from Oregon.

Beeson conducted a sandwich counter near the scene of the accident at East Twelfth street and Thirteenth avenue and was an eye witness of the fatality. Hogan's car is alleged to have run down Domigues and George Rodrigues, killing both. He is said to have been driving at an excessive rate of speed.

Why Take Care of Your Eyes?

Because they are your most valuable possession for the enjoyment of life, both in the business and social world. As well as giving you comfort and pleasure in your old age.

Let us test your eyes for Glasses.

CHAS. H. WOOD OPTOMETRIST CORRECTLY FITTED 414 FOURTEENTH STREET OAKLAND CAL. "THE WINNING EYE"

Her Heart Instead of Her Head---

She forgot all the fun she was having. She turned away from the lavish jazz-crammed days. She decided to love one man, alone and simply and then she regretted it. She had been ruled by her heart instead of her head.

Did She Kick Over the Traces---

Did she break loose from the matrimonial harness? She did not! There was another way and she found it. And that is why "FEET OF CLAY" is one of the most conspicuous pictures CECIL B. DE MILLE ever produced. In the cast are VERA REYNOLDS, De Mille's new screen "find"; ROD LA ROCQUE, RICARDO CORTEZ, JULIA FAYE and other Paramount stars.

CECIL B. DE MILLE'S SUPER-PRODUCTION "FEET OF CLAY"

—The picture that made Los Angeles gasp.
—The amazing story of a girl who goes from parties and petting at seventeen to marriage and responsibility at twenty-one.

MAN, GIRL, EX-WIFE IN COURT ROW

Threats to cite Clarence S. Klinker, property man at the Oakland Orpheum, for contempt of court and to procure a warrant for his arrest on a charge of assault and battery were made today by H. C. McPike, attorney for Gertrude Klinker, his divorced wife, following an altercation between the Klinkers and Miss Mabel Murphy at the door of the courthouse yesterday afternoon.

Mrs. Klinker has a motion pending to modify a final decree of divorce. Klinkert is opposing the move.

Miss Murphy had been summoned to the afternoon session of court as a witness but Judge J. T. B. Warne, sitting in special session, was taken suddenly ill and the case was continued before her arrival. Arrangements were made for her to be instructed by Superior Judge J. S. Koford to be on hand next Friday.

Klinkert is alleged to have met her at the door of the courthouse and told her the case had gone over, urging her to accompany him back up town. Mrs. Klinger interfered at this point, telling the witness she was wanted in court. Klinker is said to have attacked his wife, twisting her arms until she screamed.

William Manning, court clerk, who emerged from the building at this time, was attracted by the cries, summoned Eddie Barrett, deputy sheriff, from the courtroom, who put a stop to the altercation and brought Miss Murphy into court.

McPik says he will charge Klinker with contempt of court and assault and battery.

STANFORD AERIAL LABORATORY SEEN BY NAVAL FLIERS

STANFORD UNIVERSITY, Oct. 25.—Seven De Haviland navy planes from the aircraft squadrons, battle fleet, San Diego, under the command of Commander Stanford N. Moses were here yesterday on a visit to the aero-dynamics laboratory in recognition of the services to the navy and aviation of Professor William Frederick Durand, emeritus, now Washington expert for the university.

TWO ACTORS HURT IN SHIP MOB SCENE

Hollywood Movie Supers Are Crushed Against Rail in Free-for-all Fight as Director Demands More Action

VALLEJO, Oct. 25. — George Cooper and Guyan Bennett, Hollywood actors, playing minor roles in a Famous Players-Lasky film, being taken on the bay near here, were placed under a physician's care today from the effects of injuries received when a mob scene on a bay steamer became too realistic.

The two men were crushed against the steamer Colusa's railing by 49 members of the "mob," while a movie director was shouting for "more action." They were taking part in a free-for-all fight in which four members of the cast were supposed to jump into the bay to escape vengeance at the hands of a vigilance committee.

Dr. E Afl Peterson, attending physician, says that their injuries are not serious, but will incapacitate them for some time Muscles and ligaments in their legs have been torn.

The injured men were in support of Willie Collier Jr., who is being starred in "The Devil's Cargo," a movie of the days of '49 in San Francisco. The steamer Colusa, chartered to take scenes off San Pablo point, duplicates a gold rush river steamer.

The "riot" in which the men were injured is supposed to be an early day historical scene at Sacramento, when a Sacramento vigilance committee attempted to prevent an influx of San Francisco gamblers and met a steamer with a lynching party.

Six persons were injured yesterday in automobile accidents in Eastbay cities.

When the automobile which he was driving ran into another car driven by Mrs C. D. Estill, 2844 San Jose avenue, Alameda, at Trenton avenue and Union street, last night Theodore White, 544 Twenty-eighth street, suffered lacerations of the left leg and cuts about the face and arms.

Social Training Need in Schools, Dr. Kohs Asserts

Behavior Clinics' Work Is Lauded by Welfare League Speaker.

Too little attention is given to the emotional lives of children in the opinion of Dr. Samuel C. Kohs, executive director of the Oakland Jewish Federation. Dr. Kohs was the principal speaker before the educational section of the Public Welfare League of Alameda County.

"Our schools emphasize too much intelligence and physique and too little matters of social usefulness," Dr. Kohs charged.

"We should provide emotional training so as to take care of the development of moral and social qualities," he declared. "We should give social recognition to the need of curing behavior delects. A community which has made a small start, as has ours, through behavior clinics in the health centers, can make the useful work of these clinics known to the people through their clubs, churches and other organizations.

Justice should be more intelligent and less dominated by the desire to inflict pain and bring about incarceration and more directed to the development of increased capacity for well-doing in the offender, Dr. Kohs maintains. He urged that the importance of normal family life be constantly stressed.

Dr. Kohs' conclusions followed an analysis of the Leopold-Loeb case in Chicago.

Mrs. A. L Whitman presided as chairman of the program.

Rev. Lloyd B Thomas, rector of Trinity Episcopal church, has been elected chairman of the educational section of the Public Welfare League. Members of the committee include Frank M. Shick, Miss Louise Lisbon, Mrs. O. H. Fischer, Mrs. E. O. Schetter.

Her Heart Instead of Her Head---

She forgot all the fun she was having. She turned away from the lavish jazz-crammed days. She decided to love one man, alone and simply, and then she regretted it. She had been ruled by her heart instead of her head.

Did She Kick Over the Traces---

Did she break loose from the matrimonial harness? She did not! There was another way and she found it. And that is why "FEET OF CLAY" is one of the most conspicuous pictures CECIL B. DE MILLE ever produced. In the cast are VERA REYNOLDS, De Mille's new screen "find"; ROD LA ROCQUE, RICARDO CORTEZ, JULIA FAYE and other Paramount stars.

"FEET OF CLAY"

—The picture that made Los Angeles gasp.
—The amazing story of a girl who goes from parties and petting at seventeen to marriage and responsibility at twenty-one.
—A picture, poignant, powerful, tremendous in its scope, superb in its artistry—dressed in the glowing color and luxury that designates it as different from the usual mediocre motion picture.
